

Blizzard Batters Rockies

Snow, Cold Damage
Budding Fruit Trees
In Western Colorado

DENVER, April 11.—(P)—A snowstorm that snarled at spring battered the Rocky Mountain region today with a fury that at times reached the ferocity of a January blizzard.

The snowfall, beginning yesterday afternoon after nearly a week of lighter flurries and rain, was the heaviest to larrup the high country since the blizzard of mid-February.

With highways slippery and the wind stepping up ground blizzards that severely cut visibility, motorists were urged by the American Automobile Association branch here to keep their cars off country roads unless absolutely necessary. This applied to mountain passes and flat land travel alike.

Paul Swisher, state agriculture commissioner, said peach and apricot trees in blossom in Western Colorado were damaged badly by below-freezing temperatures.

One Death So Far
So far only one death has been caused by the storm. Mrs. Harriet Wilson, 65, of Tribune, Kan., was injured fatally last night in a two-car collision on an icy stretch east of Denver.

The snow began tapering off in Denver this afternoon after reaching 7 inches. It spread into the dry land area of Eastern Colorado, leaving more than 9 inches at Kit Carson and 5 inches at Lamar in the southeast.

Airline and bus schedules were knocked off beam last night and early today and planes operating in and out of the municipal airport here were flown on instruments. Air and bus traffic got back to normal today.

A plane carrying Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany to San Francisco had to circle the airport here for an hour last night before it could land on a snow-covered runway.

Kansas Also Receives Snow
A mass of warm, moist air from the southeast, colliding with a cold overcast, led to the heavy April fall, which advanced southward into New Mexico and eastward into Kansas and Southwest Nebraska.

Temperatures stayed below the freezing mark during the night, ranging as low as 6 above zero at Corral, in Northwestern Wyoming, and 11 at Leadville and Eagle, in the Colorado mountains. Denver's low was 22 above.

Child Suffers Only Small Cut In 50-Foot Fall

KANSAS CITY, Kan., April 11.—(P)—John Pitko III, 2½-year-old was alone in a delivery truck that rolled down a steep hill, plunged over a 50-foot embankment and landed upside down on railroad tracks beside the Kansas River today.

Little Johnny, pulled from among scrambled groceries and broken bottles in the wreckage, had only a cut above his right eye and some bruises.

The grocery truck driver, Raymond Hamilton, 16, was taking Johnny from the Pitko family store to the boy's grandparents. He parked the truck to deliver some groceries and the vehicle rolled away.

Johnny was taken to a hospital by his rescuers, and when his mother telephoned the hospital the attendants let Johnny talk to her. He told her calmly:

"Mommie, I went in the river."

Crossroads Comment

Soon Clean Up and Paint Up Week will be observed in Sedalia. That does not mean we should be careless about disposition of trash at the remainder of the year.

Worst offenders are those who load up a sack or carton of cans and bottles at home and toss them out of a car onto someone else's lawn, or in ditches on the country roads. One such truck was pulled on West Saline the other night. Someone had accumulated a big box of empty beer cans, too many to keep on their back porch, so they loaded up and dumped them on the street in another neighborhood.

These sort of antics deserve more than a kick in the pants.

The expression, "he has a gift of gab," certainly is a misnomer. Why should a person who has the affliction of indulging in idle chatter be considered as one having special talent or aptitude for gabbing?

Yet isn't it true in almost any social circle the loquacious person with trifling talk often receives rapt attention. Maybe it is a gift!

Not many persons can qualify as mechanical engineers but if they could they'd apply their talents to an alleviation of the irritations caused by the traffic light at Broadway and Ohio. A motorist just missing a green light has a long wait for the next one. Perhaps it's merely a matter of timing the lights but the curbstone experts think the entire unit should be changed. Here's something for the new Democratic councilmen to wrestle with as a sort of baptism in elementary irritations to prepare them for "the worst is yet to come."

Library, Bookmobile Both Carry as Total Vote Is Now Recorded

The Pettis County Library District won its establishment by a 265-vote margin, while the one-mill levy for the support of the bookmobile service carried by a margin of 240 votes, according to the final official count.

The count was announced Saturday morning by the County Court and the county clerk. The final tally, with all 30 rural districts reporting was: Pettis County Library District, 850 for, 585 against; one-mill levy, 819 for, 579 against.

Horse World Editor Will Judge Show

Russell Lundy
Coming for Local Event May 23-24

Arrangements have been completed for Russell F. Lundy, Des Moines, Ia., to judge the American Legion Horse Show in Sedalia, May 23 and 24.

Mr. Lundy, who is a nationally known horse show judge, is publisher of the magazine "Horse World." His years of experience of a judge of top horse shows include shows he has judged at the Cow Palace in San Francisco and several of the bigger shows on the East Coast. Two weeks before he comes to Sedalia, Mr. Lundy will judge the large show at Waterloo, Ia., which includes several world championship classes.

As stated earlier, Charles W. Green, former secretary of the Missouri State Fair, will announce the show for the Legion. Mr. Green, who is well known to horse show fans as an entertaining and informative announcer, was a member of Post 16, the American Legion, while he resided in Sedalia.

Fritz Hockaday, Peculiar, Mo., has been engaged as ringmaster for the show. A number of Sedalians will remember Mr. Hockaday as an official of the Sheriff's Posse Show which was held in North Kansas City last summer.

Don Rey, organizer, who is now on concert tour in Texas with Bob Crosby's show, will appear as organizer with his Hammond organ for both days.

To start off the two-day event, there will be a big parade in Sedalia at 11 a.m. May 23. The parade will be staged in a spectacular fashion. Bands, floats, novelty acts, mounted groups from saddle clubs and horsemanship groups, industrial and business exhibits and civic clubs will be featured. Prize money will be offered by the Legion for the best entries in three major divisions of the parade as well as an award for the best novelty act.

Early entries for the show include jumping horses, roadsters, and gaited horses from several of the larger stables in Missouri and Kansas. Present indications are that the two-day show, which the Legion plans to make an annual event, will be one of the largest of the coming season.

Summerfield To Attend St. Louis Celebration

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—(P)—Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield is scheduled to be on hand April 30 when St. Louis celebrates the 150th anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase.

Details of the celebration were announced today by William W. Crowder, president of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association.

Crowder said the ceremonies will center on the first day sales of a commemorative 3-cent postage stamp specially issued by the U. S. Post Office Department to honor the 1803 purchase of the Louisiana Territory from France.

Governors of the states whose area falls in whole or in part in the original Louisiana Territory have been invited to attend the ceremonies.

Miss Pauline Dennison Will Be Guest at Symphony Concert

Miss Pauline Dennison, one of Kansas City's most promising young lyric sopranos, will be the guest artist appearing with the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra for the final concert of the current season, April 27, at Smith-Cotton auditorium.

Miss Dennison, a pupil of Edna Forsythe, appeared as guest soloist with the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra at a "pop" concert Feb. 1 under the direction of Hans Schweiger and Raymond Cutting.

She recently sang the role of Adele in the Johann Strauss operetta "Die Feindinnen" which was presented at the Playhouse of the University of Kansas City.

Of her performance, the Kansas City Star's review stated: "Almost stealing the show in the part of Adele, Rosalinda's maid, was Pauline Dennison, soprano, due equally to her singing skill and vivacious personality that gave reality and zest to her role. She did well with an aria from a Mozart opera, inserted in the second act as a part of the terrace party. And, of course, she was graduated in the final scene to the estate of an actress."

The orchestra will play Mozart's

Industry To Study Atom Use

AEC Selects Firms
To Conduct Survey
On The Switchover

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(P)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced today that two private firms will conduct a year-long study to determine how soon nuclear power can be used in industry.

The announcement that negotiations for such a survey were completed was a big step forward in the AEC's policy of modifying its 10-year monopoly and inviting private enterprise into the atomic energy field.

President Eisenhower, soon, after taking office in January, settled peacetime use of nuclear power as a goal of his administration.

The AEC said that, during 1953, the Pioneer Service and Engineering Company of Chicago and the Foster Wheeler Corp. of New York will conduct a study of ways and means of building nuclear power reactor, the so-called "atomic furnace."

Local Woman Dies In Wreck Near Otterville

Mrs. Elsie Casdorff, 46, was injured fatally, and Earl D. Boyd, 39, seriously hurt in a one-car accident four miles south of Highway 50 on State Route 135 about 5:15 p.m. Saturday. Mrs. Casdorff died at the Bothwell Hospital at 8:35 p.m.

Boyd and Mrs. Casdorff were returning to Sedalia from Florence, and according to the Rev. W. S. Martin, pastor of the Bethlehem Church and principal of the Syracuse Grade School, who witnessed the accident, were driving at a fast rate of speed when they passed him. Martin said they were about 200 feet past his car, when they suddenly swerved to the right, then shot across to the left side of the gravel road as if out of control.

The car, a 1951 Nash sedan, started skidding sideways and just past a deep culvert rolled into the ditch, dropping Boyd out on the ground, rolled over twice more, and as the car was in the last roll, threw out Mrs. Casdorff. The woman was thrown approximately 20 feet into the air, barely missing some wires, and into a field between 85 and 100 feet away. When the car stopped rolling, it was about 75 feet from Boyd.

Rev. Martin was accompanied by Duane Schroeder, 15, and Leo Schroeder, 12, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schroeder of near Florence, and Willie Munsterman, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Munsterman, also of near Florence.

They were the first to reach Mrs. Casdorff and Boyd, but within a few minutes farmers in the vicinity had reached the scene. The two were brought to the hospital in the Ewing ambulance. Neither lost consciousness, and at the hospital Mrs. Casdorff talked with her son, Cleo Casdorff, 215 East 17th, and expressed the belief she would die.

They were treated by Dr. C. Gordon Stauffer.

Dr. Stauffer said Mrs. Casdorff had a double fracture of the left leg, the left arm, the left side of her chest was crushed in, fractured back, numerous lacerations, bruises and suffered severe shock.

Boyd suffered lacerations about his face, a fractured left wrist and fracture of one finger.

The accident was investigated by Sgt. W. S. Barton of the State Highway Patrol, who said it occurred in Morgan County.

The automobile, completely demolished, was towed to the George Chamberlain garage.

Both Mrs. Casdorff and Boyd resided at the Milner Hotel. Mrs. Casdorff was employed at the Town and Country Shoe factory in Sedalia, while Boyd works for the Missouri Pacific in the Store Department at the local shops.

Mrs. Casdorff was born July 18, 1906 the daughter of the late August and Lena Kurtz Bremer, at Florence, Mo., where she was reared and educated.

She is survived by her son, Cleo Ray Casdorff, 215 East 17th, who is employed as a city fireman; her grandson, Cleo Charles; three brothers, Harry and Clarence Bremer of Florence, and Hersel Bremer, 1612 South Cary, three sisters, Mrs. G. C. Semkin, 902 East Booneville, Mrs. E. H. Faidwell, 2003 West Broadway, and Mrs. Oscar Oehrke, 1720 South Prospect.

Mrs. Casdorff was a member of the Evangelical and Reform Church, in Sedalia.

Funeral services will be held at the Gillespie Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Monday.

There will be a short graveside service at the cemetery at Florence.

The body is at the funeral home.

Officers Find SAFB Projects On Schedule

Most Work Ahead
With Weather Only
Cause Of Delays

The Sedalia Air Force Base construction was given an inspection Friday afternoon by Brig. Gen. E. M. Potter, Omaha, Neb., and Col. L. J. Lincoln, Kansas City. Gen. Potter is the commanding officer of the Omaha Division of U. S. Corps of Engineers, of which the Kansas City district is a part, and which is under Col. Lincoln.

The SAFB construction is under the supervision of Col. Lincoln's district with E. A. Schmidt as project engineer at the base.

The engineering officers were met at the base by Lt. Col. D. W. Campbell, of the Second Air Force, Barksdale AFB, La. Lt. Col. William E. Smith, of the 301st Bomb Wing, at Barksdale, and Capt. Richard M. Doyle, of the Second Air Force.

A tour of the entire base was held at which time the progress of the new and large runway, the apron, and various barracks buildings and other construction were checked. The entire project represents an expenditure of more than $21,000,000, Gen. Potter remarked.

"I might add, we have had excellent cooperation between the Air Force and the Engineers on this base," Gen. Potter remarked. "From reports and after viewing the construction, I might add I am personally pleased with the progress."

Schmidt, in discussing the construction and its progress, explained that on an overall picture the progress is somewhat ahead. He said the work on the runways and the overlay of the aprons is a little behind, this being due to weather conditions, while actual construction on various buildings and roads is well ahead of schedule.

"With weather conditions continuing like today," Schmidt added, "we will make much headway on pouring of the concrete for the aprons, as well as getting good progress on the runway."

Schmidt indicated the runway and aprons would be completed by Sept. 1, with other construction being completed on or before their scheduled completion dates.

Lt. Col. Campbell and his party were also accompanied by Maj. A. M. Bobbitt, executive officer, and Maj. J. W. Burlingame, air installation officer, of the SAFB.

During his tour with Gen. Potter, Lt. Col. Campbell likewise paid compliment to the excellent progress being shown on the various projects.

Late in the afternoon Gen. Potter and Col. Lincoln departed by motor car to return to Kansas City while Lt. Col. Campbell, Lt. Col. Smith and Capt. Doyle took off by air to return to Barksdale AFB, Shreveport, La.

Gen. Potter and Col. Lincoln were also accompanied by R. O. Rogers and L. D. Hall of the Kansas City district office, both civilian employees.

KANSAS CITY (P)—Union grain millers voted today to accept settlement of a wage dispute with milling companies, thus ending a nine-day strike.

The action was taken by local No. 16 of the American Federation of Grain Millers (AFL), but several other locals in Kansas and Missouri are expected to follow suit.

J. A. Leveridge, business representative, said all workers should be back by Monday morning in Greater Kansas City and points in Missouri and Kansas.

A tentative agreement announced last night incorporated the granting by the mills of a five-cent differential between a 15-cent raise negotiated last summer and a 10-cent hike granted by the new defunct Wage Stabilization Board.

ROKs Retake Key Outpost In Wild Fight

SEOUL, Sunday, April 12.—(P)—Stubborn South Korean infantrymen once more knocked Chinese Reds off bitterly-disputed Outpost Texas in savage fighting between midnight and dawn today.

It was the 12th time the Korean Central Front hill has changed hands in bloody combat—much of it hand-to-hand—and down the shell-scarred slopes since the Reds first grabbed it from the Republic of Korea troops Easter Sunday.

The U. N. Command said the ROKs threw back three Red counterattacks by groups of 40 to 175 Chinese in storming the hill this morning. The Reds broke contact after each of their attacks failed to stop the oncoming ROKs, the command said.

The command said the situation was "fluid" in the early morning hours "with both sides endeavoring to gain undisputed possession of the ground." It called the pre-dawn fighting "intense."

In the air action Saturday, U. S. Sabrejets shot three Red MIGs out of North Korean skies and an unidentified light plane, presumed Communist, dropped two small bombs and some leaflets on U. S. 10th Corps headquarters on the Eastern Front.

Contents of the leaflets were not disclosed.

A spokesman said no damage or casualties resulted when two 100-pound bombs were dropped about 9:45 p.m. at the corps headquarters. The Eighth Army said there was an alert, but a Fifth Air Force spokesman said he knew nothing about the incident.

In addition to the three MIGs destroyed, the Air Force said pilots claimed three MIGs damaged. The claims were held up pending evaluation of gun camera films of air battle near the Yalu River frontier of Manchuria.

Despite the signing of an agreement for the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners at Panmunjom both the air and ground war continued after a bitter peace.

South Korean soldiers of the 3rd Republic of Korea Division were shoved off Outpost Texas on the Central Front, east of the Pukhan River for the sixth time in five days. The bloody action with Chinese Communist troops has raged without stop into its fifth day.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said the South Korean counterattacks Saturday and drove 175 Chinese off the hill after a determined 40-minute fight. But the Chinese surged back and smashed the South Koreans off the crest in 10 minutes.

Two Navy Fliers Die In Kansas Jet Crash

OLATHE, Kan., April 11.—(P)—Two Navy fliers were killed today in the crash of a jet training plane shortly after it had taken off from the Olathe Naval Air Base.

The Navy withheld identification of the victims.

The plane, a TV-2 stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., arrived here yesterday. The fliers took off this afternoon on a flight to Memphis, Tenn., and their two-seated plane crashed about 20 miles south of here on a farm near Spring Hill, Kan.

Navy officers said they did not know the cause of the crash. The plane exploded and burned when it hit the ground.

Cherry Blossoms Miss Day In Their Honor

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(P)—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower crowned the queen. The sun beamed down from a cloudless sky. A crowd of about 15,000 basked in 70-degree spring weather.

In other words, the big day of the annual Cherry Blossom Festival today had everything to make it a success—except cherry blossoms. The blooms of the famed Japanese trees burst forth early this year and disappeared ahead of schedule.

Park Playgrounds Will Open In Week; Equip Vermont Park

Action to complete Vermont Park, and put necessary equipment there for the new area's first season of recreational use, and for the opening of park playgrounds within the next week was made by the Sedalia Park Board at its meeting Friday night.

The board decided to open the playground areas immediately in order to accommodate the rural schools which close early and want recreation places at which to hold their closing picnics.

At Vermont Park, the newest addition to the park system, the board has agreed to have two bridges built, walks and lights installed, picnic tables, benches and ovens provided.

At the same time it was decided to order five new slides, new teeter-totter boards and three new swinging units for the parks.

Pointing-up of the outside brick walls, and painting the exterior woodwork of Convention Hall was agreed upon as was the patch-

Adenauer Can See Only One Problem

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—(P)—West German Chancellor Adenauer said today that European and Far Eastern questions must be settled together.

His statement was made in a speech to the Commonwealth Club, one of the oldest businessmen's groups in this gateway to the Orient.

"I am a European and Europe is therefore my main concern," he said. "But all of us, you as well as we must be clear in our mind that in this period of world-wide tension between the East and the West the question of the Far East and of Europe are most closely interwoven and that the ones can not be settled without the others."

Earl Whiteman Dies In Action With Marines

Pfc. Marshall Earl Whiteman, 19, brother of Lt. George A. Whiteman, the first Sedalian and first U. S. airman killed during the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, has been reported killed in action, April 9, 1953 in Korea. The message was received by his mother Mrs. Earle Whiteman, 623 West 24th, late Saturday.

The message from the Defense Department gave no details of Pfc. Whiteman's death.

His brother, Lt. Whiteman, was 22 when he died trying to take his plane into the air as the Japanese made their attack on Pearl Harbor.

Pfc. Whiteman enlisted in the U. S. Marines, in January 1952, and only a few weeks ago landed in Korea being assigned to the US First Marine Division.

He was married in 1951 to Miss Shirley Snyder of Lees Summit, Mo., who survives him. His widow now resides at 3539 Wayne, Kansas City.

Young Whiteman was born in Sedalia, Dec. 31, 1933, the son of Mrs. Earle Whiteman of the home here in Sedalia, and John C. Whiteman Sr. of Kansas City.

He attended Horace Mann and Smith-Cotton High Schools.

Surviving besides his wife and parents are two sisters Mrs. Ray Berry, Hamilton, Mo., and Mrs. A. E. Williams, Ardmore, Okla.; six brothers, John C. Jr., of Prairie City, Ore., Paul A. of Jefferson City, Pfc. Lee of the U. S. Marines in Hawaii, Franklin E. of Kansas City, Carl O. of Tucson, Ariz., and Robert S. Whiteman of the family home, 623 West 24th.

Feud Will Cost Gas Consumers In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—(P)—A longstanding feud between the LaCade Gas Co., and its supplier, Mississippi River Fuel Corp., flared anew today—which probably places some 300,000 consumers in line for rate increases.

Only yesterday the two firms appeared near settlement in their dispute over gas rates.

In short, this is what happened today:

Mississippi River Fuel announced it had placed into effect a higher rate schedule originally denied by the Federal Power Commission, but refuted with the FPC yesterday.

LaCade immediately asked for a resumption of hearings on a general rate increase application before the Missouri Public Service Commission. The increase is necessary, LaCade states, due to the Mississippi Fuel hike.

The Mississippi River rates rejected by the FPC last summer would have brought the firm an annual increase of one million dollars. Later a U. S. Court of Appeals at Philadelphia ruled the EPC had unlawfully rejected the request without a hearing.

Officers Fix Date At Meet On Saturday

MUNSAN, Sunday, April 12.—(P)—The U. N. Command and the Reds today agreed to start a pre-armistice exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of war at Panmunjom on April 20.

The date was fixed at a meeting of Allied and Communist staff officers at Panmunjom.

The agreement to exchange disabled POWs was signed at Panmunjom yesterday by liaison officers of both sides.

A successful exchange could be the first step toward resumption of full-scale armistice talks, suspended Oct. 8. The Red liaison officers yesterday proposed a renewal of the talks. The U. N. Command has not yet replied.

Barber Keeps Appointments Hard to Get

NEW YORK, N. Y., — (AP) — In many ways it's easier to get into the Union League Club or the Social Register than it is to get into the chair of Robert Hefter, the "millionaire's barber."

It's not just a question of who you are or whom you know. It's also a matter of personality. Your personality. Hefter won't change his.

He won't cut your hair without an appointment one or two days in advance. And you won't get an appointment without references from two old customers.

You'll need references from men like Benjamin F. Fairless, board chairman of U. S. Steel; T. R. Vreeland, president of the International Bank; Elton Hoyt II, of the transportation magnate from Cleveland, O.; Dan Aronstein, the taxicab tycoon; Albert Spalding, the violinist Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of the New York Times, or Gilbert Miller, the theatrical producer.

If you don't like conversation don't come in. Hefter, at 74, is an aggressive talker. He permits you your opinions and even allows you to express them. But don't try to change the subject. He is determined that you hear him out—on politics, economics, philosophy, morality or sex.

"Also, my customers have to take some kidding," says this thin, erect, white-haired master barber. "Now and then, if a man forgets his wallet, I call him a cheap-skate even if I know he has eight million dollars."

"Also, I tell them jokes and I tell them about my love life. Of course, I have to make most of it up, but they don't care." Now, about shaving. Hefter won't tell you over to an assistant or tell you to shave yourself at home. This is one of the ground rules. Hefter regards shaving as a waste of his talents.

"The secret of my success," he explains, "is that I cut a man's hair with his wife's taste in mind. She knows more about it than he does. Women don't like to see their husbands looking like they just came out of a barber shop. I never, never use clippers."

Another secret of his success, Hefter says, is his attitude towards his clients.

"The more natural you are, the bigger success you are," he says. "The more you feel yourself their equal, the more they respect you." All this has paid off handsomely in a rare and lucrative clientele. Among others, Hefter has cut the hair of President Theodore Roosevelt, President William Howard Taft, Andrew Carnegie, F. W. Woolworth, Andrew and Richard Mellon and Henry Topping.

Hefter charges $1.50 for a haircut, which is moderate in mid-Manhattan. But his tips average

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday Morning, April 12, 1953

Missouri History—

Dry Goods and Wet Groceries Lured the Frontier Customers

IN THE COUNTRY STORE neighbors met for leisurely shopping while they visited and exchanged the latest news.

The woman's linsley-woolsey skirts brushed the door as the boy clutching her hand surged forward after his father into the frontier store. The family had finally made a trip to the crossroads settlement. Here was luxury.

From floor to ceiling on all four sides of the store stretched shelves bulging with dishes, books, liquor, bolts of cloth and small parcels of spices and patent medicines.

The man of the family noticed axes, log chains, and garden implements in one corner. Saddles and harness set him bargaining with the clerk. The child hung entranced over the huge open barrel of brown sugar.

The typical frontier store in Missouri was a two-room log building not much different from log cabin homes. The front room was used for sales and displays, and the back room for the store-room. In the rear stood kegs of green coffee beans ready for the customer to roast. Flour and salt shared the floor space with such durable goods as pots, pans, and hardware. The overflow hung suspended from the rafters by cords.

When a steamboat drew up to a landing and the crew began rolling out boxes and barrels for a new store in a western community, people for miles around came to watch the spectacle. Groceries—tea, coffee, sugar and liquor—that perhaps only six weeks ago had stood on the shelves of some Phil-

$1 or $2 a head, many are $5 and $10 and once he received $100 for a trim.

Chevrolet's improved Velvet-Pressure Jumbo-Drum Brakes give maximum stopping power with maximum ease of application

Chevrolet owners have long been convinced that they have the safest as well as the largest brakes to be found on any low-priced car.

And now, for 1953, our engineers have made these brakes even more efficient by installing a new hydraulic master cylinder, increasing brake responsiveness while decreasing pedal effort, and adopting a new foot-form brake pedal which provides easier, more natural contact with the foot.

The results are much smoother, more responsive brake action . . . with up to 23% less pedal pressure . . . and a soft, velvety feel of operation hitherto found only in higher-priced cars.

Realize, too, that here is the only low-priced car with sturdy Fisher Unisteel Construction, Safety Plate Glass in windshield and all windows of sedans and coupes, extra-easy Power Steering* and many other important safety factors, and you'll understand why owners rate the new Chevrolet tops in safety-protection as well as in beauty and performance.

Come in; see and drive this thrillingly advanced car at your first opportunity.

Portrait of Her Father Given Mrs. Carver by Artist Wilson

Dave Wilson, a warehouse employee of the Midwest Auto Stores, is an amateur artist who paints for sheer enjoyment and he picks his subjects to suit the endeavor he wants to undertake. Recently he walked into the Midwest warehouse office over on Hancock Ave., carrying a large picture frame. The back of the picture was out and no one could see what the frame might hold. He strolled over near the desk of Mrs. Don Carver and holding the frame out to her, still with the picture facing him, he asked, "Do you want this thing?"

Somewhat startled at the offer of a picture frame, Becky was not sure whether to say "yes" or "no."

KC Police Nab 3 Local Boys On Theft Here

Sheriff John Taylor and Police Chief Ed Neighbors left Saturday afternoon for Kansas City to bring back three Sedalia youths who Saturday morning tried to sell a Royal typewriter there belonging to Smith-Cotton High School. The boys are in the custody of the Kansas City police.

Their arrest resulted after they attempted to sell the machine to the Midwest Typewriter Co. The dealer noticed a sticker on the front of the typewriter showing that it had been sold by the Sedalia Typewriter Co.

The dealer was suspicious that the machine was a stolen one, but was unable to check directly with the records of the Royal office in Kansas City because it was closed on Saturday. Instead, he made a long-distance call at about 9:30 a. m. to Charles Hofheins, owner of the Sedalia Typewriter Co., and gave him the serial number of the machine. He then permitted the boys to leave without letting them know that a check was being made.

Meanwhile, Hofheins consulted his records and discovered he had sold the typewriter to the high school last July. He notified Miss Juanita Berry at the school, who checked and found that a typewriter of the kind described was missing from the room used by the staff of the annual "Archives." Her records confirmed the purchase of the typewriter from Hofheins in July.

Hofheins then telephoned the Kansas City dealer and told him of the theft. The dealer had taken down the boys' car license number and immediately called the Kansas City police. The boys were soon located and taken into custody.

Miss Berry notified Cecil Glenn, juvenile officer, of the theft and he, in turn, notified Harold Barrick, prosecuting attorney. Barrick issued warrants to the sheriff for the boys' arrest and Taylor left immediately for Kansas City. Glenn said that a microscope has been missing from the high school for about 30 days and that the boys have been connected with its disappearance by the Kansas City police.

Two of the boys, Phillip Wolf 18, and Gary Franklin, 17, are students at Smith-Cotton. The third, a juvenile of 16 years, dropped his studies there last year. The older boys have been charged with grand larceny. The third boy has been charged with delinquency and his case will be handled in juvenile court.

The "Archives" staff room is on the second floor of the high school. The 1952-53 annual has already gone to press and the room is not used much now. Mrs. Thelma Cook, annual sponsor, is out-of-town and could not be reached to learn when the typewriter was last used. It is not known when the typewriter was stolen.

ABWA Learns Of Role Glass Has In Life

O. W. Wiley, Pittsburgh Corning Corporation, spoke to the American Business Women's Association Tuesday evening on "Romance of Glass." He gave an interesting talk on the history of glass and told of the many years spent on experiments which proved to be of small avail before technicians attained the secret for which they were looking.

An experiment which took four years of constant work turned out to be the opposite of what they were looking—a material which was opaque instead of translucent as we think of glass today. This was only one of the failures resulting from experiments and laborious work before glass was improvised for use.

This opaque material was in no form to be used and immediately improvements were initiated to where glass is now an imperative article in our lives.

Glassware has been improved from an ordinary dish to one which can attain exorbitant degrees of heat. We think of glass in our age alone, but glass is one of the oldest substances in history. First to be made from glass is believed to be strings of blue glass beads which were worn by the

Police Court
Jerry Kelley, 321 South Engineer, fined in police court and sentenced to the city jail for careless driving, was released Friday after it was learned he is a juvenile, and the police court actually had no jurisdiction over him.

The youngster carried a driver's license which gave him age as 18, and not until his mother appeared at police headquarters and a check was made as to his birth, were the police satisfied. As soon as it was learned he was a juvenile, Cecil Glenn, juvenile officer, was notified and took charge of the case.

Glenn took the license and ordered the boy not to drive a car until he had been given his permission, as long as he was of juvenile age. The youngster will not be 16 until Nov. 30, 1953.

No action was taken by his parents on two previous arrests, Sept. 8, 1952, when he was fined for careless driving, and on March 11, 1953, when he paid $15 for an improper muffler. Action came after he had been given the jail sentence Friday.

Nine overtime parking violators, who failed to appear in court, forfeited their cash bonds of $1 each.

Magistrate Court
Norman Massey, Kansas City, pleaded guilty in Magistrate Court Saturday morning to a charge of careless and reckless driving, and was fined $10 and costs.

Mrs. Peters said she and her husband had come to town to buy groceries for the family including five boys and two girls, and when she reached the store her money was gone.

Mr. Peters is unable to work and it was all the money the family had. Anyone who found the money can return same by calling police headquarters. They are willing to give part of the money to the finder if they can get some of it back.

The Freese-Rissler Dairy, Main and Prospect, was found open by the police at 12:30 a. m. Saturday. The place was locked and the manager notified.

Harry Kolbohn Shows Slight Improvement

Harry J. Kolbohn, who was badly injured in a car wreck on Highway 65 on March 22, has shown slight improvement for the past two or three days. He is still very weak and cannot have visitors. His wife, Elizabeth, is improving satisfactorily from a fractured pelvis and minor injuries. Both are patients at Bothwell Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Kolbohn of Chillicothe were on their way here to visit his sister, Mrs. Laura Meyers, when the accident occurred. Mrs. Meyers, who has also been a patient at the Bothwell Hospital with a heart ailment, returned to her home, 231 South Quincy, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Rhoda Robinson of St. Louis is still with her brother, Harry, Mr. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Donegan of St. Louis have returned home. Mrs. Donegan, who is a registered nurse, spent two weeks here at the Bothwell helping to care for the three patients.

Injured were: Carl Ellis, 200 East Tower, driver of a truck, who suffered a fractured vertebrae, fractured left elbow, lacerations on his head, bruises and shock. Alvin Emmett Womble, 1023 East 4th, passenger in the truck, facial cuts, bruises and shock.

John Conrad, 30, Kansas City, driver of a Chrysler coupe, cuts bruises and shock. William Joseph Egan, 23, Kansas City, lacerations of the face and on the right elbow.

Carl E. Carlson, 26, Kansas City, cuts bruises and shock. State Trooper Earl Gregory, who investigated the accident, reported Ellis told him he was driving the 1948 International one-ton truck of the Square Deal Produce Co., 220 West Main, south on Highway 65. He said he pulled to the right and stopped to let a car pass before making a left turn onto the Spring Fork road. He then started up and was making the turn when the Chrysler car crashed into the left side of the truck, he added.

He reported Conrad as saying that as he came over a rise in the road he saw the truck making the left turn, but it was too late to stop or avoid the crash.

The left door and side of the truck were caved in and the frame badly sprung, while the front end of the Chrysler was demolished. The truck was towed to the Hamilton Service station while the coupe was taken to the Chamberlin Garage.

The injured were brought to Sedalia and taken to the Bothwell Hospital in the Ewing ambulance where medical treatment was rendered by Dr. Pete Siegel.

Third National Bank Observing Its 70th Birthday This Week

Oldest Banking Institution in Sedalia
First Opened Its Doors April 14, 1883;
Has Grown in Size and Service With City

Sedalia's oldest financial institution, the Third National Bank, will observe its 70th anniversary on Tuesday.

Opened on April 14, 1883, the Third National has grown with the community it has served. Sedalia was still young when the banking house first opened its doors to those original customers. Less than a quarter of a century prior to that date the land was merely prairie.

It had been 23 years since Sedville was platted and then renamed Sedalia. In the intervening years the railroad had arrived and with it had come the people who had built not just a town, but a city. There were 15,000 persons here then and it was to serve a portion of this population that the Third National was founded.

Albert Parker was the first president with J. N. Dalby as vice-president; R. H. Moses as cashier; and these directors: James Glass, J. N. Dalby, Henry Mahankel, J. H. Mertz, Herman Kahrs, George J. Lesure, Morris Harter, C. E. Messerly, Albert Parker, John Montgomery Sr., S. C. Gold, Charles W. McAninch, Cy W. Brown, R. H. Moses and A. P. Morey.

On the day the bank opened, at 205 South Ohio, there was little fanfare, or so it seems from the account of the Sedalia Bazaar. Five lines of type were devoted to an announcement that the Third National Bank had opened its doors to customers.

None of the people who read that announcement could know then that 70 years later the anniversary of that opening would be remembered and observed.

Fewer, still, could have realized

'Talking' Dog Spells, Adds, Picks Colors

ROME, — (AP) — "Of course," said the dog's master, "she doesn't really talk—she barks, but Dana can spell. She can add, subtract, multiply, divide and distinguish colors."

Gino del Mar, a well-off Milanese who likes to train dogs that confound learned savants and societies, began setting up Dana's act.

Dana, a black poodle, slumped disinterestedly on the floor. "She uses Bernard Shaw's euphonic alphabet," said Del Mar, spreading 21 letters on three slanting boards.

Dana growled when a spectator bent to inspect one of them.

"Better leave them alone," said Del Mar. "Dana doesn't like to have her letters handled." He finished by setting up a giant abacus. "Up Dana," he said. "Let's get going. Come on, come on."

Dana pushed her fat, black body to a standing position. She didn't bother to look alert.

"Come on, Dana. Now, when we came here what kind of weather was it?" Dana didn't move. "Come on, Dana, what kind of weather was it—get going."

Dana nuzzled the letter "S," picked it up by its attached thong and placed it on the floor.

Then one by one she lifted the letters "O," "L" and "E."

"Sole" is Italian for Sun. Dana then spelled a dozen more words, all with an air as though doubting whether Del Mar ever would really learn them.

"Many scientists say dogs cannot distinguish colors," said Del Mar, pushing a number of colored balls to the left on the abacus. "They're wrong."

"Now, Dana, how many red balls are there?"

"Arf, arf, arf, arf, arf," said Dana.

"And blue?"

"Arf, arf, arf, arf, arf," said Dana.

"And yellow?"

"Arf, arf."

"Good, now subtract the yellow from the red balls."

"Arf, arf, arf, arf."

"Now add the red to the blue."

Dana was right too.

She barked the division of 57 by 17. Then she barked the remainder. She barked the number of men in the room, scarcely bothering to look at them. When a girl entered, she barked once for her.

"How many females are there in the room?" asked Del Mar.

Dana barked twice.

"That includes herself," said Del Mar. "She's female."

Dana is Del Mar's second "talking" dog. His first was a Scotch terrier, Bonnie, who learned some 630 words before an accident ended her life. Dana is only 4 years old. She's not as sharp yet as Bonnie, but Del Mar believes she probably will be in two or three more years.

Del Mar, who would like to organize a world society of dog owners willing to devote a few minutes daily to teaching their pets, maintains any dog can be taught.

"Dana is no phenomenon," he says. "Neither was Bonnie."

Dana has appeared before Rome University professors, at Paris Sorbonne, before the Italian Metaphysical Society, on radio and television.

Del Mar wrote a book about Bonnie's accomplishments entitled "Your Dog Can Write." He sent a copy to Harvard University.

"They said it was interesting, but obviously they didn't believe it," said Del Mar.

"But dogs are intelligent and can be educated. The owner must be convinced the dog can learn. If the dog does not understand, it is not the dog's fault but the fault of the instructor."

"Arf, arf," said Dana.

"That means 'Yes,'" said Del Mar.

Wallace Does Not Like New Soviet Chief

Editor's note: What has happened to Henry A. Wallace, one of the most controversial figures of the New Deal-Fair Deal era, since he left the political wars? AP staff writer Charles Mercer went up to Wallace's New York state farm to find out how the former vice president is living in busy retirement. Here is his report.

By CHARLES MERCER

SOUTH SALEM, N. Y., April 11.—Throughout the gray afternoon Henry A. Wallace had no ill to say of any man—except Georgi Malenkov.

A farmer now, Wallace is more interested in discussing eggs than politics. He is trying to breed a better hen which will produce a better egg.

Yet the din of the political wars still echoes over his hilltop farm. Wallace watches and listens through newspapers, television and radio. He smiles—and then he goes out to take a look at his chickens.

At 64, he is a good example of a man who lost a political race and won the longer race against time and discontent. He is doing what probably half the city men in the nation want to do: living on a farm, enjoying the seasons.

He has a spacious home, stocked with good books and comfortable chairs, where he lives with a pleasant wife who obviously is as devoted to him and his way of life as he is to her.

Doubtless many a political leader would swap places with the gray-haired Wallace right now. But after a half-day's conversation with him you conclude that Wallace would refuse to swap for any political office in the land. He's plainly happy.

Only once did the sword flash in the serene library of his big white farmhouse. That was at mention of Stalin's successor, Malenkov.

Then the quiet farmer was gone and there leaned forward the fiery, controversial political leader who always spoke out boldly.

"No person can base a program on hate and force as Malenkov seems to be doing without—if he lives long enough—reaping Hitler's end."

"I am just as certain now about Malenkov as I was about Hitler in 1941—if he continues what he is doing he will be a disaster."

Wallace looked out at the rain which shrouded the hills of this rolling country. Perhaps he remembered the days in 1948 when, as the presidential candidate of the Progressive party, he keyed his campaign to friendlier relations with Russia. Perhaps he remembered his bleak disillusion with the Soviet government after the outbreak of the Korean War.

The only possible way Malenkov and his close associates could survive in power, he said, "would be if they worked out some kind of good neighbor policy with their satellite nations instead of their present master-slave relationship."

Malenkov has a short time in which he could, without losing face, change Russian policy into the direction of genuine peace.

But if Malenkov continues on what seems to be his present course, said Wallace, "there is a moral law in the universe operating against him. It has been demonstrated again and again that second and third generation dictators cannot long survive."

Near the turn of the century the Third National was rated the distinction of being major a depository of the United States government. Today it is a member of the Federal Reserve System and its deposits are insured through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, of which it is a member.

LONGEST DEPOSITOR of the Third National Bank is Harvey F. Keans. He has had an account there for a longer continuous period than any other customer. He opened his account on March 4, 1890 and today it is still active after 63 years. This picture is of Mr. Keans at the period when he opened his first account there as a found man.

then that the new banking house would be the only firm of that period to survive and thrive through the three and a half generations that would follow.

Yet, the Third National was the youngest of six banks in Sedalia the day it began its business and today it is the oldest such institution in the community. The five other banks, which in 1883 were serving Sedalians, have gone and the Third National is stronger than ever, its officers and directors looking forward to many more years of continued growth and service.

How the bank has grown, and how Sedalia has grown, is indicated in comparative figures of the three score and ten years interval. In 1883 the bank deposits of all six banks in Sedalia were $834,545.37. Today the Third National alone has total resources in excess of ten and one-quarter million dollars.

Many services not then even dreamed about are today offered in the same bank which in those days was striving to provide the most modern of facilities for its customers. Night depositories, photography of checks, travelers' checks and numerous services today are to be found for the convenience of Third National people.

These services probably would have been offered the original customers in '83, but they were unheard of then. Through the years the services have been added, as they found favor with banking customers, and the "Third" has kept pace with the times in its conveniences for patrons.

In order to make available all the necessary services, and to take care of the ever increasing business, the Third National has twice enlarged its quarters. It moved from its original location to the southeast corner of Third and Ohio and later doubled its space at the latter spot by the purchase of a building next door south. This gave the bank its present space which was modernized several years ago to become one of the most attractive and serviceable institutions in a wide area of the state.

Today the bank is headed by H. E. Harris, whose father, H. W. Harris, and uncle, E. H. Harris Jr., were presidents before him. Charles Hanley is vice-president and cashier. The two men have worked together to lead the bank through many trying times, especially in the '20s and '30s, when many similar institutions across the nation were closing. The strength and backing they have maintained and the leadership they have given their customers an institution in which they have the fullest confidence.

Art Exhibit at Library April 24-26—

New Sedalian Glad for Chance To Meet Other Artists at Show

By Hazel Lang

Mrs. H. C. Cooper, 1805 West Broadway, is new in Sedalia. She came here after her son-in-law, E. W. Lansdowne, was transferred here as manager of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, and the Lansdowne family moved to Sedalia.

Coming here from St. Louis where she knew many people and was active in art work, she found Sedalia a very lonesome place. She just couldn't seem to get acquainted, that is, acquainted with people who shared her interests such as art and music. About the time she was ready to give up along came the announcement of the Amateur Art Festival which is to be held the latter part of April.

The civic minded young women of Beta Tau Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority didn't know about Mrs. Cooper, but they had in mind that there were probably many people in the community who liked to do art work of one kind or another and they thought they might like to know each other. The logical thing to do was to have an art exhibit and let them get together.

Mrs. Cooper only has one worry now. That is what to exhibit. Of course it will be something in oil painting, but what, she just doesn't know. She does china painting, too, and sculpturing, antiques and almost anything in art.

When she was just a little girl her father had a stock farm and she had a grand time with the stock. She liked the horses and rode bareback—and, she not only rode the horses bareback, but she also rode the pigs. It didn't make much difference to her what kind of animals they were, she liked playing around them and with them.

Well, it was on her daddy's farm that she stepped one day into some soft clay. She stooped down, picked up some of the clay in her hand and began molding things out of it. That was her first experience with anything in art but she was right pleased with herself and her family seemed pleased, too.

All through her life she tried a little art, not too much, because she always felt a little hesitant. She tried water color and china painting but—she did china painting with water colors.

"Mother," said her daughter, Hortense, "Why don't you try oil? Why those dishes are beautiful, but the paint washes right off."

"Oh, but I couldn't do oil painting," said Mrs. Cooper, "I just never could do oil painting."

Hortense was determined so when Christmas came she gave her mother a set of oil paints. Mrs. Cooper was scared. She never ed a beautiful figure of a girl, and so she took the paints back, but she left the face blank. Her family and friends were very lavish in their admiration of the figure, but the fact that it had no face bothered Mrs. Cooper. He kept insisting Mrs. Cooper put a face on the figurine.

"But I can't," Mrs. Cooper would argue. "Oh, yes you can," he insisted. And then one day she got up nerve enough to try. She was so afraid she would ruin the figurine if she tried to put the face on it, but she took a real sharp knife, something like a dentist uses, and when she had finished the face was just as beautiful as the rest of the figurine.

Mrs. Cooper has found much pleasure with her art. She has exhibited in art shows and in stores, she has tried almost everything in the line of art, even to fabric painting. But the most pleasure she has had with art is in sharing it. Sharing her knowledge and helping young girls get started. There is one little story she loves to tell best about girls she has helped get started in art. While she lived in St. Louis she heard of a little girl who had had polio and whose widowed mother had to work and leave her at home alone. The girl couldn't walk and she spent many lonely hours. Someone told Mrs. Cooper about the girl. "If she just could paint," she said. "She has a talent for it."

Mrs. Cooper went to see her, arranged for her to take lessons and there was deep satisfaction in her eyes and a smile on her lips as she told of that little crippled girl today. She is no longer a lone little girl. She is a community, because Mrs. Cooper is making her own way in life. She now has lots of friends, is busy in a work she loves and Mrs. Cooper is grateful that she was the one who was able to help her.

Teaching art is something else Georgia Cooper likes to do. She doesn't care just what she does, anything, painting, sculpturing, she is happy as long as she is working with art, but it is something that one must share, she feels. That is why she is so very glad that the Beta Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was thoughtful enough to sponsor an exhibit, for she knows that an exhibit is a lot of work.

She hopes she makes some friends among the artists in the community, because Mrs. Cooper is lonesome in Sedalia. Two years ago her husband died and now she has moved to a new town. She needs friends and she would like so much if some of her new friends liked art, too.

When birds are migrating, their crops usually are empty.

THE THIRD NATIONAL BANK Began Serving the People of the Sedalia Area

The Face of Our Community Has Changed . . .
But the Strength and Service of The Third National Has Remained Constant

Just twenty-three years after General George R. Smith and Colonel David W. Bouldin had filed the plot of a town they called Sedalia on October 16th, 1860, and just twenty-two years after the Missouri Pacific Railroad reached Sedalia in January, 1861, the Third National Bank opened its doors and has been pioneering in its efforts since to serve the needs of the people of this community.

The Third National was not the first bank to be founded here—it was the sixth bank—but it is the only bank of that original group that has weathered good times and bad and has gone on to serve the people.

In March, 1866, Cyrus Newkirk and Col. A. D. Jaynes founded The First National Bank. In February, 1868, The Sedalia Savings Bank was founded by Mentor Thomson and Elisha Brown. Four years later in December, 1872, the Citizens National Bank with Clifton Wood as its first president opened its doors. In 1875, The Pettis County Bank was opened with O. A. Crandall as president and he held that position until July, 1880, when he resigned to open the Missouri Trust Company, of which he was president.

Then on April 14, 1883, The Third National Bank was born. At the time of its opening Sedalia was a town of 15,000 people—the entire growth had come in only twenty-three years—and immediately found its place in the financial and business life of Sedalia.

Total bank deposits in Sedalia in 1882, just prior to our opening were $834,545.37. Total resources of the Third National Bank at the present time are in excess of $10,250,000.00!

From the first days when our customers waded the mud, rode in on horseback, and drove in wagons and buggies, through the era of the honk and rattle of the Model T Ford, The Third National Bank—a growing bank—was keeping pace with the community, state and nation . . . pioneering in better ways to serve its customers.

Today, you'll find streamlined facilities. A bigger, broader, better banking service in every respect. And that pioneering spirit is still here . . . still pushing us forward. In new methods—modern machines—better facilities, the effort to serve you even better goes endlessly on. It's to you, our customers—present and potential—that we dedicate our future . . . our next seventy years!

Model Hobby Became Business, Has Been Profitable for Johnny

Did you ever go inside that little model shop on Ohio between Sixth and Seventh, the one with the miniature airplanes and cars displayed in the window? If you're the parent of a boy, there's a real friend of yours inside that shop.

His name is Johnny Flaspohler, but it seems strange to see his last name in print, even here. The small army of model builders in Sedalia refers to him as Johnny, and that's always enough.

One by one, the boys drift into his place when school is over each day, some to shop for model material and others just to exchange talk. If they have any special problems, they can help each other out or get the answers from Johnny. He has learned the answers to many problems during the ten years he has owned the shop. In turn, the shop has been the answer to an even greater problem for Johnny himself.

Johnny is almost completely crippled. He became that way 16 years ago, when he was only 24. Johnny's father had died when the boy was 18, and his mother was working. For the next four years after he became crippled, Johnny spent his days in the house alone. That's a long time to be away from the world.

But during that time, Johnny learned to use his hands skillfully in model building, and it kept his spirits up. His outlook on the future strengthened to the point where he began to think about starting some sort of career. That change in thinking was his greatest step forward.

A friend, after listening to Johnny speak of his ambition, set to work building a motorized wheelchair powered by a gasoline engine. Johnny tried it for the first time in the spring of 1942, amid much excitement. His stay-at-home days were ended.

He started a wholesale carded goods business that summer, selling his assorted items to neighborhood groceries and drug stores. When he wasn't on his route, he visited the neighborhood youngsters and helped them with their models. That winter, during bad weather, a friend made his sales deliveries for him while he took orders by telephone at home.

Next spring he was right back on his route again. His little business was building up.

It built up sufficiently so that in the fall of 1943, on Sept. 15, he was able to open his own shop and he has been successful there ever since. It was slow going at first, because the demand for carded goods—which was all he sold then—was not heavy. But a new idea was buzzing around in his head, and it worked.

Johnny was still fascinated by model building. Because of his own experience with its benefits, there had come to him a philosophy that has remained with him since. Keep a boy busy with his hands and you will keep him happy and out of trouble. Why not open a hobby shop and give other boys a chance to learn what he had?

At Christmas time in 1943, he ordered a few model kits. They sold fast. Next summer he ordered more. By then the war-born scarcity of materials had eased and more and better kits were available. Still they sold fast. By 1945 he carried a good stock of airplanes, ships and cars. In 1947 he added model railroads, along with a few model toys at Christmas.

Johnny's business is still growing. Since last Christmas he has introduced a new line of handcraft sets to his stock—tilecraft, shellcraft, plastic lacing, beadwork and oil painting kits. There has been increased interest in these and they are selling very well. The carded goods disappeared from his store long ago, and Johnny devotes himself exclusively now to models and model supplies.

But aside from his business expansion, Johnny has also been responsible for greater model activity throughout the city. Before 1943, there had never been a model contest in Sedalia. Johnny learned about this as soon as he opened his shop and decided to do something about it.

It took a while to arrange, but in July, 1945, he persuaded the Kiwanis Club to sponsor a model airplane contest at the old municipal airport. Between 6,500 and 7,000 spectators watched modelers from all parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Illinois demonstrate their fliers.

Sedalia has had an airplane model contest every year since then. One time the contest was postponed until later in the year because of a polio scare, but the contest was still well attended.

In addition, Sedalians have participated in national and international contests across the country, including the International Model Plane Meet at Detroit, sponsored by the Plymouth Motor Co. It is open to modelers up to 20 years old, and 500 entries take part in the meet every year. At least two Sedalians have won prize and honors there.

In 1951, Valgene Hayworth won first place in the Navy carrier deck model class. This gave him the right to participate again last year, and again his model won first place. At the same time, he won second place in the jet plane speed class.

Jim Satterwhite entered the Detroit meet last year for the first time and won ninth place with his gas engine model—a fine record for a first try. The achievements of both these boys are all the more remarkable when you learn that they are now but 16 years old.

Johnny has had his model shop almost ten years now. In that time he has seen many changes in model making, both in techniques and designs. The emphasis these days is on flying models, but at first there were more solid models. Planes had to be made of basswood, bamboo and wire. There were no preshaped or pre-cut parts. Instead of buying complete kits, boys used to buy just the plans and then use trial-and-error methods to accomplish their task.

The war presented more problems. Balsa wood had become popular in model building, but it now was scarce. Ribs and formers were all of cardboard, and stringers, the long lengthwise strips on the outside of a model, were of pine and hard to use. Even if these rough materials were skillfully handled, the resulting model was heavy and awkward. Plastic was still a marvel of the future.

Boys used to make their own cement out of celluloid and acetone, and banana liquid was used to treat the model paper instead of dope. The liquid was not colored and an extra layer of paint had to be applied. Now colored dope does the job more quickly and thoroughly. It has a lacquer base and is fast-drying.

Improved methods and materials mean that nowadays the finished models are better looking and better performing than they used to be, but it does not mean that the modelers themselves have any more ability, Johnny says. Not so much work involved as formerly. Ability remains about the same.

Another result has been an increased interest in modeling, almost as much among adults as among youngsters. Better working conditions and time-saving devices have provided people with more leisure, Johnny explains.

Adults seem to like best to fiddle with radio control models, and there are two such modelers in Sedalia. Another will soon start trying his hand at it. It used to be necessary to have a radio operator's license to run radio controlled planes, but now a special closed radio band has been assigned to the modelers for that purpose alone and no license is required.

Another incentive has been the sharp drop in price of radio controls. Not more than seven years ago $50 wouldn't have bought a receiver. Now it will buy a whole control set.

The first radio models Johnny ever saw were in 1946 at a national meet in Wichita, Kan., when three of them were flown. Now there are 30 or 40 at every meet.

Maybe all this makes Johnny sound like he's never grown up. Well, he's quite ready to admit that he's still a young fellow who gets a kick out of watching youngsters develop their handcraft skills. He has seen an interest in modeling result in career aids in more than one case.

Witness the story of the jet pilot: Nine years ago a skinny young lad of 15 entered Johnny's shop and stared in fascination at all the model kits piled high on the shelves that line two walls of the shop. Johnny watched him for a while and then got to talking with him.

The boy said he had his heart set on building a gas engine flier, but he added hurriedly that he wouldn't be able to buy anything that day because he didn't have enough money saved up yet. He had built several gliders before, but never a gas model. Johnny studied the boy's face and saw the eagerness there, and he encouraged the young fellow in his ambition.

That summer the boy got a job in a Sedalia dime store. Some time later he returned to the shop and proudly bought an American Ace, a pretty plane which he took great pains to assemble. Johnny agreed to meet him at the golf course for a trial flight. Another friend drove Johnny to the course and they waited a long while for the American Ace and its "pilot" to show up.

He finally arrived—very late—because he had walked all the way. Johnny hadn't known that the boy had no transportation. It was one more proof of the young man's sincere interest in airplanes. But the day was destined to have a sad ending. It took many adjustments to get the Ace to fly properly, and on its final flight it soared completely out of sight and was never found again. The boy was terribly disheartened.

Johnny couldn't let that happen, and he and several other modelers chipped in and got the boy another model. This, too, was carefully and well built—and lost from sight on its trial flight at St. Joseph!

The boy persisted, however, and turned to models of his own design. Johnny still shakes his head when he remembers what happened when the boy demonstrated his helicopter in the workshop the year of Johnny's store. The helicopter was on a string, but that didn't keep it from swaying from side to side. "I thought he was going to tear up that back room," Johnny admits.

By now four years had gone by, and the boy had decided he wanted to become an aviation cadet. The requirements were that he had to be 20 years old with two years' college credit or be able to pass an exam which would concern technical material on a two-year college level. The boy was 19 and started to college to earn his credits.

At the end of one term, however, he became 20 years old, took a stab at the examination and passed it. Where had he learned all that technical material? From model magazines and tinkering with the models themselves.

"It's amazing just how much information was contained in those magazines," he later told Johnny. He immediately entered the aviation cadet program and a year later had his wings. That was in 1950.

He is now First Lt. Richard Peterson, 423 North Summit, now a jet plane instructor at Conway Air Force Base, Waco, Tex. About three weeks ago he was in Sedalia on a visit home and stopped in to shoot the breeze with Johnny, as he does now and then. He has never forgotten how Johnny encouraged and helped him in the beginning of his airplane career. That's just one example. Many more of Johnny's friends are thankful for his encouragement and guidance. They are of all ages and come from every kind of home in Sedalia. One of them may be your son. In that case, you can count Johnny as one of your friends, too.

Southwest Baptist College Choir Sings at SCHS

By Ruth Maurine Hoffman

The choir from the Southwest Baptist College at Bolivar presented a concert before a Smith-Cotton Senior High School assembly Friday morning. The program opened with the group singing the Southwest Baptist College "Alma Mater" under the direction of the president of the choir, several sacred numbers were then presented:

"Beautiful Savior," "Sing and Rejoice" by Will James, the "Gloria" by Mozart, and "Holy, Holy, Holy,"

Bob Hatzfeld sang "Two Grendiers" and Ann Hall, "Come to the Fair." Miss Hall also sang a duet with Jean Huxel, "Side by Side." A girl's quartet presented "Carolina Moon" and "Sleep, Kentucky Baby." A solo, "Just Bill," was given by Ida McHarg.

"Inflammatus," with Carolyn Williams featured as soloist, and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" concluded the program. The choir was under the direction of Miss Katherine Hines; Dixie Koenig was the accompanist.

Band plays for Jr-Hi. At the junior high school assembly Wednesday morning a band, directed by Ronnie Hoppes, played several numbers. Members of the group were Ronnie, Gary Wickliffe, Duane Miller, Joe Green, Jimmy Alcorn, Tony Welch, and Craig Brougner. Judy Case was the vocalist.

Bob Spraggins presented a trumpet solo, "Trumpeter's Lullaby," accompanied by Judy Case. He also played a duet with Ronnie Hoppes.

Hogan Builds Lead In Masters Meet With Brilliant 66

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 11 (AP)—Ben Hogan shot a six-under-par 66 today, matching the second best score ever recorded in the Masters golf tourney. He set a 54-hole record of 205 and stretched his lead to where it will be almost impossible to catch him in tomorrow's final round.

And, he proved that the greens on the Augusta National course aren't the big, bad ogres that they've been pictured.

The determined little man from Texas played a near-perfect round over the picturesque, 6,900 yard course, but it was his putting that turned it into a masterpiece. The huge putting surfaces are supposed to be the chief trouble makers on the specious, rolling Augusta National layout. But today Hogan had only two three-putts, despite difficult pin locations, and he took only 31 putts for the round. He was dropping them from 20 and 30 feet—and on the ninth green from 40 feet—for his birdies.

Hogan's 32-35-66 was only two strokes behind the record for the par 36-36-72 course. Lloyd Mangrum set the mark of 64 in the 1950 Masters, when he finished second. There have been several other 66's in the 16 previous tournaments but probably none more gratifying than the one Hogan shot today.

He's Just About A Cinch

With a 205 total, two strokes under the previous 54 hole record made by Byron Nelson in 1942, Ben only has to stay close to par tomorrow to set a new tournament record.

And after he finished he repeated an earlier prediction that the winning score this year will be a record. The mark that stands is 279, set by Ralph Guldahl in 1939 and equaled by Claude Harmon in 1948.

The only one near Hogan in the scoring when he finished was Ed "Porky" Oliver, his playing partner, who played with him in the final round of the National Open and beat him out for the runner-up spot, had a pleasing 67 today. That gave him a 54-hole total of 209.

That figure still was good for second place at the end of the day's play as none of the other challengers could come close to Hogan's torrid round.

Veteran Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., who started one stroke behind the leader, wound up in third place with 210. He shot 33-77, missing his chance to stay ahead of Oliver on the last two holes. He made a poor recovery from a trap in front of the 17th green and left himself a 25 foot putt which he couldn't sink, going over par. Then a 12-foot curving putt which would have given him a birdie on 18 just missed the cup.

Harbert in Fourth Place

Long-hitting Chick Harbert of Detroit, scrambled to a 70 for a fourth-place total of 211 and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, one of the pre-tournament favorites had a 71 for 213.

Sam Snead, who won the Masters in 1949 and last year, also had a 71, finishing strongly after a bad start, but his 217 total left him out as a candidate for a third title.

About 10,000 spectators were attracted by today's perfect summer weather and most of them followed Hogan around and loved everything he did.

Tiger 9 Meets Columbia Here Monday At 2:30

Don Delph, one of his three returning lettermen, is Smith-Cotton Baseball Coach Forest Annall's choice for the Tiger's contest here Monday afternoon with the Columbia Kewpies.

This will be the local club's second game of the season; it won its first outing, 18-5 over Windsor, on April 3.

Other probable starters for Sedalia will be Larry Mines, catcher; Jack White, first base; Buck Bennett, second base; Bobby Case, shortstop; Elroy Burton, third base; Benny Neale, left field, Don See, center field; and either Lloyd Lane or John Higgins in right field.

If the weather is favorable, Delph will try to go all the way; if it's cold or damp, he will be relieved by Burton or Johnny Brooks. The other member of the Tiger mound corps, Bob Abney, probably will not see action because of a sore arm.

Columbia Coach Bob Roark will start either Bruce Gray, a southpaw, or George King, a right-hander, with Ken Roberts in reserve.

The rest of the Kewpie lineup will find Dale Thomas, catching; Larry Marshall at third; John Old at shortstop; Bob Sapp at second; either Dale Nichols or Bill Starnes at first; Jerry Whitesides in left; Frank Fenton in center; and either Roberts, Starnes or Harry Strader in right.

Game time is 2:30 p.m.

White Sox Whitewash Cubs; Fornieles Stars

CHICAGO, April 11 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox unloaded 11 hits off four opposing pitchers, including a home run by Chico Carrasquel, to back up rookie Mike Fornieles' airtight mound job in blanking the Chicago Cubs 6-0 today at Comiskey Park before 7,800 fans.

It was the Sox' eighth straight spring victory and their sixth in nine games with the Cubs to cinch the annual city series.

Belvoir Rips Wood To Win Cage Crown

FORT MEADE, Md., April 11 (AP)—A batch of college stars turned soldiers and playing together as the Ft. Belvoir, Va. Engineers won the all-Army basketball tournament today by beating Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., 76-64.

The Engineers moved unbeaten through the double elimination tournament and will represent the Army against the Navy, Marines and Air Force in the inter-service world's championship at Omaha, Neb., next Friday and Saturday.

Pfc. Jack George of Washington, D. C., a 1950 star at LaSalle College, was the big gun for the Engineers in the final, scoring 7 of his 20 points in a second-period surge that put Belvoir ahead 40 to 28 at half-time.

The vigorous guarding was reflected in 53 personal fouls, nine of the ten started playing the final period with four against them and six of them fouling out before the end of the game.

Don Byrd, a 17-year-old from Center High School at Cleveland, O., scored 17 points for Ft. Wood. The Hilltoppers had worked their way back into the final after losing to Ft. Sill, Okla., in the first round. They had to beat Camp Roberts, Calif., Camp Breckinridge, Ky., and then Ft. Sill to do it.

Ft. Belvoir beat Ft. Jackson, S. C., Camp Breckinridge and Ft. Sill to get to the final.

The Engineers boasted three college stars of all-American caliber in addition to George—Ed Diddle of Western Kentucky, Dick Groat of Duke and Paul Lansaw of Cornell.

Fred Christ, former Fordham star from Glendale, N. Y., was high point man in the tournament with 131 for Ft. Monmouth.

Yanks Continue Their Mastery Over Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, April 11 (AP)—The New York Yankees took up where they left off in the 1952 World Series today when they defeated the Dodgers again, 5-4, at Ebbets Field, where the Series ended last October.

The world champions took the lead in the second inning when Gene Woodling hit a two-run homer and Phil Rizzuto brought in two more with a slashing single. What proved to be the deciding run came in the fifth when Hank Bauer walked, moved to third on a double by Mickey Mantle—one of his three—and scored on Yogi Berra's fly.

Eddie Lopat, in his final pre-season test, pitched six innings for the Yanks, giving up seven hits and two runs. He was relieved by Ellw Ballou.

The victory was the Yanks' fourth in six games with the Dodgers this spring. The two teams meet again tomorrow. Today's game lasted 11,023 to Ebbets Field.

Vernon's Fly Allows Nats To Trip Pirates

PITTSBURGH, April 11 (AP)—A long fly by Mickey Vernon drove in the winning run in the ninth inning today as the American League Washington Senators defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League, 3-2, in an exhibition game.

Vernon's fly scored Mel Hoderlein who reached first on a single and raced to third on a pop single by Jim Busby.

Howie Pollet was the losing pitcher.

KU Trackmen Splash To An 87-44 Victory

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 11 (AP)—The power-laden Kansas track team dashed through an easy 87-44 victory over Nebraska in a Big Seven dual meet in rain, cold, win and sloppy footing today.

Nebraska's Cliff Dale defied the miserable weather and hurled the discus 145-feet-13 1/2 to surpass the 144-foot mark set by Lewis Ward of Kansas in 1937.

The triumph was the 12th straight in dual competition for Coach Bill Easton's Jayhawkers, who haven't been beaten indoors or out since 1951.

Dick McGinn of Kansas was the only double winner, taking the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Wes Santee, a K U distance ace, could have gained clear-cut victories in the mile and half-mile but held back each time to finish in ties with teammates Lloyd Koby and Art Dalzell.

Rain fell steadily all morning and intermittently soaked the athletes this afternoon while the temperature averaged 38 degrees.

CRAPPIE FISHING DIVIDEND—This 14-pound carp was landed by Elmer Kaulden, 136 East Chestnut, Saturday before last on the Cole Camp Creek arm of the Lake of the Ozarks. The strange thing about the catch is that Kaulden had crappie in mind when he dropped his minnow in the water.

Cards To Help Braves Open New Stadium

MILWAUKEE, April 11 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, who have played only two innings in their new $5,000,000 home, will entertain the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday in the first regular major league game here in 50 years.

The starting time is 1:30 p. m. (CST). It will be the Cards' first start of the 1953 National League season, but Milwaukee opens at Cincinnati Monday.

Rain washed out all except the first two innings of two scheduled exhibition games here against the Boston Red Sox Thursday and Friday, after a tumultuous Milwaukee welcome for the transplanted Braves.

The spacious Milwaukee County Stadium—sold out long ago—will bulge with a capacity crowd of 36,000 for the National League opener. Wisconsin's Gov. Walter J. Kohler will pitch the first ball.

Manager Eddie Stanky of the Cards, respecting the Braves' new right-hand hitting power, will start Gerry Staley, a right-hander with a 17-14 pitching record last year. The Cards held a 15-7 edge over the Braves in 1952. Staley winning two, losing one.

Manager Charley Grimm will choose either Jim Wilson (12-14) or Max Surkont (12-13) as his starter. Both are right-handers, Wilson holding a 3-2 edge over the Cards last year as compared with Surkont's 1-1 record against St. Louis.

Winter trades brought to the Braves right-hand punch in the cards of Andy Pafko (.287), ex-Brooklynite, and Joe Adcock (.278) from Cincinnati.

Missouri Rallies To Nip K-State In Track Meet

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 11 (AP)—Missouri scored heavily in the distance races and field events to come from behind and defeat Kansas State 68½ to 62½ in a Big Seven dual track meet today.

Four meet records were broken. Thane Baker of Kansas State set a new record of 48.8 in the quarter-mile and equalled the records of .09.8 and .21.3 in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Two other K-State men set new marks—Dick Towers, 4:25.4 in the mile and Veryl Switzer, 23-feet-4 1/2 in the broad jump.

Ken Hirshey of Missouri posted a record 1:56.9 in the half-mile. Baker's three firsts made him the top scorer. Ronnie Salmons of Missouri won the shotput and the discus.

Agne, a freshman, walked only three in the game halted by rain after seven innings.

Sports Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

THE Missouri Pacific Boosters are back in business—athletic business—having assumed the responsibility of sponsoring the Ban John baseball team in Sedalia. Cal Rodgers, who sponsored the Chiefs for five years, gave up the team this spring, but is giving his entire support to the new sponsors as well as passing to them much equipment.

Palmer Nichols, Chief Booster, and H. L. "Hank" Williams, chairman of the athletic committee of the Boosters, met with a group of players Thursday night and the final decision was made for the Boosters to carry on the team this year. But it was not until the boys themselves agreed to the terms of "really wanting to play ball."

My hope is that the Boosters will see it through. Well do I remember back in the 20's and the early 30's when the Boosters sponsored a semi-pro baseball team. They had a great ball club and probably the greatest rivalry between baseball clubs existed right here in Sedalia between the Boosters and the old Sedalia Athletics. The city series always drew overflow crowds.

Then as time went on the Boosters lost interest and the team disbanded. They had a great basketball squad and this activity went the same route.

With "Nick" and "Hank" behind it, I feel the going will be hard, but it will go. I do know that if the ball players will give their best to the team, they'll find no better pushers than the two who are behind the project.

The Booster Club consists of all Missouri Pacific employees. The success will determine upon the interest the Missouri Pacific employees put behind the team. They used to support the Boosters' activities and they should renew their interest and get behind this worthy project which is ALL THEIR OWN.

Yes sir, it is good publicity for the Missouri Pacific, but it is also something the employees can throw out their chest over, in keeping an athletic activity going which is well worthwhile.

SOMETHING else the Missouri Pacific Boosters have their fingers in—but the sponsorship was in name only—The annual Missouri State Semi-Pro baseball tournament. Only a few men of the entire Booster Club came through to help put the tournament on, others should have at least attended the games to make it a financial success—but only a few did this.

On the other hand you cannot expect the Booster Club to do it all, the way, pay admission to the games, and make it a financial success. The latter part falls back on Sedalia itself. Sedalia has enough baseball fans in it to fill the baseball stadium, but for some reason or another they have failed in the past few years to get steamed up over the tournament. No better ball can be seen than right here in the tournament. True there are lousy games but you have them in the Majors just as well.

This year the Boosters are sponsoring the tournament and only through the insistence of H. L. "Hank" Williams, state commissioner, was it returned to Sedalia. So an early warning Boosters members got busy and talk up Your tournament, encourage baseball fans other than your immediate circle of shop and railroad employees to go out and give it their support.

Last year the winning team took back home $1,000 in first prize money, but the other teams felt thusly, second place $188.39, third place $125.59. Four divisions of fourth place gave each team $15.70. Only because a first prize guarantee was the purse $1,000, had it been based on percentage it would have amounted to much less than the amount received.

Comparison of our neighboring State of Kansas which paid its State Championship team $5,000, with the smallest in prize money going to four teams in seventh place each receiving $303.78. The second place winner got $2,223.55 and third place paid $1,189.83, just think, third place paid $189.83 more than Missouri's first place winner.

Of course you cannot drive fans into the stands. But fans should realize that right here in Sedalia we are bringing the cream of Missouri's crop of baseball teams for your pleasure, and it is up to you, if you want the tournament back, to come forth this year and give your support in attendance.

BUY yourself a piece of happiness by investing in the Little League program to build the Little League Home at the Jenny Jaynes Lewis Memorial Foundation recreational area. The "Home" will consist of a regulation Little League baseball park, its own grandstand, and baseball park equipment.

A drive is being started to raise $5,000. It is necessary to get that amount in the stadium, estimated at $2,400, dugouts at $200, fencing $600; backstop and wire protection for the bleachers $230; $250 for ground improvements; and approximately $1,200 for showers, and other necessary equipment for the park.

Sedalia has gotten off to a great start in this program and deserves the support of all Sedalia. At present more than 400 boys will be taken care of in baseball activity of the ages of eight to 12 inclusive.

Now if the Little League officials come around to make a "touch" buy yourself a share in the project.

IT has been called to my attention, a program for young girls. The question shot to me was "We are doing much for the youngsters in the Little League, but why can't some program be started for the girls?"

It is a good question and deserves much consideration. However, it will take the support of the women folks. It has been suggested that volleyball and softball leagues be formed for girls from eight up to 15, make a division in age groups but keep it under the same plan.

Likewise it was pointed out it would not take as much money to sponsor this program, but would possibly take the directorship of more women. Such a program as requested could be built to give recreation to as many as five to six hundred young girls to start off with.

Now if some energetic women want to start off on a "Little Girls' Program" maybe we can stir up some interest.

O'Bannon Takes Three Firsts

A trio of versatile trackmen completed 38 points to lead Coach Norman James' Smith-Cotton club to victory Friday afternoon in a triangular meet held on the Kemper Military School oval. Sedalia came in with 79 points, followed by Kemper with 44 2-3 and Booneville Public High School with 26 1-3.

Junior dashman Chester O'Bannon enjoyed another field-day, scoring 16 1/2 points on three individual firsts and anchoring the winning mile relay team. Points were awarded for four places on a 5, 3, 2, 1 basis.

He ran the best race of the day to capture the Quarter-mile in 54 seconds. His other victories were in the 100-yard dash, in which he finished first and anchored the 440-yard dash, in which he won with a leap of 18-feet-7 1/2.

Lingle was the second most productive Tiger with 11 1/2 points. He won the 220-yard dash in :24.1, finished second in the 100; tied for second in the broad-jump; and ran on the winning half-mile relay team.

Distance star Jim Bob Shepherd got his daily double, worth two points, by romping home first in the half-mile and mile. His 2:10.4 effort in the half mile ranks as the second best performance of the afternoon. The lanky senior ran the mile in 4:32 and wasn't pressed.

Another Tiger to win a first place was Buck Bennett, who cleared 5-feet-4 1/2 in the high-jump. Bennett also ranked fourth in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Particularly pleasing to James were the performances of four newcomers to his squad. Three freshmen exceeded the mentor's hopes. They were Van Van Dyne, who placed second in the half-mile; Walt Kennon, who tied for second in the high-jump; and Bob Austin, who came in fourth in the half-mile, but didn't get any points, due to the ruling a team can place only two men in each running event (Shepherd won this event and Gerald Jones placed third).

Another youngster who caught the coach's fancy was Jim Ellis, a sophomore competing in track for the first time who earned two points with a third-place finish in the 220.

Sedalia's next track competition will be Tuesday night in the Missouri Valley Relays at Marshall, with Raytown and William Chris-

Errors Hand Browns A Win Over Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, April 11 (AP)—Veteran Virgil (Double No-Hit) Trucks kept the St. Louis Cardinals' big bats under wraps today while his St. Louis Browns mates took advantage of three errors to defeat the Cards, 2-0, in their city series opener. The game was cut to five innings by rain.

Two errors by Ray Jablonski, the Redbirds' rookie third baseman, and a fumble by pitcher Harv Haddix, set up both Browns runs.

A crowd of 10,394, sitting in a drizzling rain, watched Trucks tune up for his opening day pitching assignment by limiting the Cards to one hit, a single, in three innings. He walked two and struck out three, including a first-inning fan of Jablonski with the bases loaded.

The Redbirds' only other safety, a single by rookie Rip Repulski, came off Dick Littlefield, who relieved Trucks.

The Browns collected only three hits off Haddix, including two by Jim Dyck, but the Cardinal miscues were decisive. After Jablonski's two-base throwing error on Trucks' grounder in the third, rookie Bill Hunter smashed a run-scoring single through short. Dyck delivered a base hit that drove in the final run after errors by Haddix and Jablonski in the fifth.

Red Sox Ruin Braves' Return To Former Home

BOSTON, April 11 (AP)—Milwaukee's transplanted Braves drew a cordial and prolonged reception from their abandoned Boston admirers today but, as in their wont at Fenway Park, dropped their third straight cross-country "city series" game to the Red Sox, 4-1.

From the sounds that reached the rooftop press box, the majority of the 9,000 crowd sympathized with the Braves but those diehard fans had few chances to become excited as righthander Hector (Skinny) Brown turned back the Wisconsin Tribesmen with a neat four-hit performance.

Brown, obtained from the Chicago White Sox in the swap for Verr Stephens, held the Braves scoreless until Andy Pafko hit the first pitch into the left field screen for a homer in the seventh inning.

That blow drew a terrific roar from the apparently non-partisan spectators, who were favored with sunshine and a comfortable 60-degree temperature. Pafko made his first visit to Fenway a memorable one by smashing another Brown pitch against the center-field fence for a double with two out in the ninth.

The Braves used four pitchers, starting off with righthander Bob Buhl, who gave the Red Sox all of their runs in the fourth inning.

Park Board To Meet On Wednesday Night To Schedule Diamonds

Managers, or representatives of the various baseball clubs which plan to play in Sedalia this season, must meet with the Park Board at this session to present their schedules.

No other opportunity will present itself for a change in the scheduling of the use of the various parks for teams not represented.

At present, the only definite schedule of the park is the last two weeks in July, which already have been set aside for the annual Missouri State Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament.

Frank Mehl and John Vandekamp are the two members in charge of scheduling. They already have been contacted by the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, for Junior Legion baseball.

Kid Nichols Dies At 83

KANSAS CITY, April 11 (AP)—One of baseball's old-timers, Charles A. (Kid) Nichols, died today at the age of 83.

A member of baseball's Hall of Fame, the Kid's career as a pitcher in the major leagues spanned 15 years, from 1890 to 1905. During that time he won 360 games and never was removed in a single game for a relief pitcher.

He spent 11 years with the Boston Nationals, and played the leading role in the five pennants won by that club.

In later years he was fond of comparing his own salary as a major leaguer with the sums received nowadays. His top with Boston was $3,000 in 1892. That was the year he won 36 games and lost 16.

The frequency of arm ailments among modern-day hurlers disturbed him.

"If a pitcher today wins 15 games a year he is considered great," he said recently. "We used to work 40 or 50 games a season and pitch every day. If we got a kink in the arm we kept on pitching until we worked it out. Nowadays they rush a pitcher to the hospital."

He thought young pitchers try "Too much fancy stuff and ruin their arms."

Nichols, born in Madison, Wis., was 11 years old when his parents moved to Kansas City. Six years later he got his start with Kansas City of the Western League. Because of his age, he was named "The Kid."

After playing with Kansas City and Omaha in the Western League, he went with Boston in 1890.

Byrd's Hurling Stops Phils; A's Win, 5-1

PHILADELPHIA, April 11 (AP)—Harry Byrd, the American League's outstanding rookie in 1952, pitched the Philadelphia Athletics to a 5-1 win over the National League Phillies today in the first tilt of a three-game series.

All six runs were unearned. Byrd went the distance, allowing five hits while his mates were collecting seven bingles off three Phillies hurlers—Curt Simmons, Karl Drews, the loser, and Robin Roberts.

Yankees Option Three To Kansas City Blues

KANSAS CITY, April 11 (AP)—Two pitchers and an infielder were obtained on option today by the Kansas City Blues from the New York Yankees.

They are Al Schalleck and Harry Schaeffer, both left-handers, and Cal Segrist, an infielder.

Yankees, Brooklyn Choices To Repeat

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
NEW YORK—The New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers figure to breeze home as baseball's champions once again.

Baseball men—even those who claim it would be good for baseball to see the Yankees lose—see only the Cleveland Indians as a Yankee threat to gaining a fifth straight American League pennant, a feat never before accomplished.

National Leaguers see a four-team race between the Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies, New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals but the majority rates Brooklyn as the team to beat.

Both the Yankees and Dodgers have picked up considerable pitching strength. This cannot be said of the contenders.

They must look to last year's second division to find the most improved team in either circuit. The Milwaukee Braves, shifted from Boston less than a month before the opening of the season, have been rejuvenated to such an extent that they could crash the National League's first division.

In the American League the Boston Red Sox, who dropped from third to sixth in the final month last fall, have repaired a number of gaps and could very easily relegate a fast but light hitting Chicago White Sox team to the second division.

Dodgers' Problems
The Brooklyn Dodgers could be stronger defensively and offensively if Jim (Junior) Gilliam, 23, opens the season at second base. Every baseball man says "Gilliam is ready."

Dressen's big problem, other than keeping peace on the Dodgers, could be left field, the spot vacated when Andy Pafko was dealt to the Braves.

Dressen is twice as deep in pitching as a year ago. He has in Joe Black a top relief pitcher who won 15 and saved 15 others. He will stay in the bullpen, especially with such starters available as Carl Erskine, Billy Loes, Russ (Monk) Meyer, Preacher Roe and Ben Wade. Behind them is a second stalwart line—Ralph Branca, Clem Labine, Johnny Podres and Jim Hughes.

Duke Snider, who hit four series home runs, and Roy Campanella both look for their best seasons. Snider is after the batting title.

The Giants have a veteran staff of six starters—Sal Maglie, Larry Jansen, Jim Hearn, Dave Koslo, Max Lanier and ex-Red Frank Hiller. But all are over 30. They may need Hoyt Wilhelm's knuckleball to make a fight of it.

They have 77 games in the Polo Grounds—and solid hitters in 30—by Thomson, Monte Irvin, Al Dark and Whitey Lockman. They also have rookie Daryl Spencer who hit 27 homers at Minneapolis.

Phillies Improved
The improvement in the Phillies has Earl Torgeson on first and Mel Clark in right field. Both bats could spark Puddin' Head Jones and relieve pressure from Del Ennis. Clark hit .335 as a rookie and .364 during his final 17 games. He may keep John Wyrostek on the bench.

After Robin Roberts (28 wins), Curt Simmons (14) and Karl Drews (14) the Phillies pitching is thin. Reliever Jim Konstanty is Manager Steve O'Neill's fourth starter but he needs four or five days' rest between starts. Trading Meyer helps Brooklyn, since Monk beat the Giants three times.

Manager Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals is very optimistic over his starting pitchers—Gerry Staley, Joe Presko, Vinegar Bend Mizell, Harvey Haddix and Stu Miller. The latter pulled a shoulder muscle at Bradenton March 20 and may have trouble.

The Cards have more question marks than any contender. They find new men—Rip Repulski in center field and Ray Jablonski on third base plus Steve Bilko, the perennial freshman on first.

The most interesting man on the Cards will be Stan Musial as he goes after his seventh batting title.

Manager Charley Grimm returns to Milwaukee for the third time but for the first spring with the Braves. His only standbys from last spring are Eddie Mathews on third and Sid Gordon in left.

Right handed power hitters like Pafko and Joe Adcock could help Mathews become the new home run king in the majors. Pafko and Adcock add 27 home runs to the attack. Service returnee Del Crandall is counted on as No. 2 catcher and Negro speedster Bill Bruton as center fielder. If the double play combination of John Logan and Jack Dittmer clicks the Braves could become a contender.

Can Sauer Duplicate?

The Chicago Cubs have improved little and few people expect Hank Sauer to duplicate 121 runs batted in and 37 homers which accounted for his most valuable player prize. He recently broke his right pinky sliding. Frank Baumholtz and Dee Fondy may find it tough to match their best seasons. In Bob Rush and Warren Hacker, Phil Cavarretta has two top pitchers.

Their best addition is ex-GI Preston Ward but Fondy seems to have first base sewed up. Team problems are in catching and a light-hitting infield.

Manager Rogers Hornsby might get Cincinnati home closer to the first division, a spot they missed by 18 games. He's high on new outfielders Gus Bell, Jim Green-grass and Bob Marquis. Willard Marshall is his right fielder. Rocky Bridges, a holler guy with a silent bat, may take Grady Hatton's second base job.

After southpaws Ken Raffensberger and Harry Perkowski he has hurling problems. Prospects include Bubba Church, Herm Wehmeier, Ed Ewart, Howie Judson and Barney Martin. The Reds have two all-around men in Ted Kluszewski (.320) and Bobby Adams (.283).

Ralph Kiner, Joe Garagiola, George Metkovich and Pete Castiglione are the only Pittsburgh Pirates sure of regular duty as Fred Harvey comes from Hollywood to take over a team loaded with youth and three inexperienced bonus players who must stick. The Bucs have Vic Janowicz, 1950 Ohio State All-America half-back, and the O'Brien Twins, Eddie and Johnny, of Seattle basketball fame.

Stengel can count eight starters—Allie Reynolds, Vic Raschi, Ed

Lopat, Ed Ford (back from the service), Ewell Blackwell, Tom Gorman, John Sain and Bob Kuza. The latter, famous as a Series reliever, had a two-hitter and a four-hitter among his six complete games in 12 starts last year. Lefty Johnny Schmitz and Ray Scarborough figure for relief. May 1, will permit Stengel to carry 13 pitchers.

The Cleveland Indians should finish no worse than second. Bob Lemon, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Bob Feller is an imposing Big Four. Behind them are spot starters Bob Hooper of the A's, Steve Gromek and Negro rookie Dallas Lou Brissie, Mickey Harris and Ted Wilks will handle relief for Al Lopez.

The returning serviceman rule which permits all clubs to carry five ex-GIs even after the 25-player outdate 30 days after the season opens, gives Lopez a stronger bench. Returning are Lefty Al Aber, 25, whose one big league start was a five-hit victory over Washington in 1950, and Outfielder Jim Lemon who hit 39 homers in less than a season for Oklahoma City in 1950. A solid attack, featuring Larry Doby, Luke Easter and Al Rosen, could get the Indians off winging. Question marks are Easter's trick knees and the shortstop of Ray Boone.

Jimmie Dykes added power when he traded Ferris Fain, his two-time hitting champ, to Chicago for slugger Ed Robinson. Robby may take some pressure off Gus Zernial who hit only .262. However, between them they drove in better than 200 runs. Dykes has several problems—third base and behind the plate—but his biggest may be Bobby Shantz. The little lefty has not been the same 24-game winner since his wrist was fractured last September. In Harry Byrd he has a coming mound ace who won nine of his last 16 decisions.

Manager Lou Boudreau has pitching problems in Boston after Mel Parnell, Mickey McDermott, Sid Hudson and Willard Nixon. Reliever Ellis Kinder must return to form to help ease the situation. Jim Piersall is slated for an DiMaggio's center field spot. First baseman Dick Gernert may be the team's only power hitter with George Kell and Bill Goodman battling for the average honors. Injuries hurt the Sox last fall. They began September in third place but finished sixth, losing 20 of their last 27.

Sox May Suffer
The Chicago White Sox may suffer in the Fain-Robinson deal. Vern Stephens and Alex Carrasquel are infield question marks. The Sox also traded away pitching strength in Marv Grissom and Chuck Stobbs. Bob Keegan, 30, may pick up some slack. He completed 27 games for Syracuse, won 20, seven shutouts. He's from Bucknell.

Bucky Harris, starting his 26th season as a manager, is thin in reserves and could use more hitting. Jack Jensen, a .280 hitter, looks good hitting No. 4. The Nats are strong in pitching as compared with Cleveland's 80, Starters are Bob Porterfield, Lefty Stobbs, Walt Masterson, Connie Marrero and Frank Shea, if he overcomes painful shoulder muscles.

The Browns will be trying players cast off by other clubs. They figure to be satisfied with Bill Hunter, $150,000 rookie shortstop who hit .284 at Fort Worth. Bob Holloman, 27, a 16-game Syracuse winner, may be their top rookie hurler. He missed nine weeks due to an appendectomy. Satchel Paige, whom Bill Veck says is 53, is still around for relief.

Brightest thing about the Tigers will be their hard-hitting shortstop, Harvey Kuenn, $65,000 bonus player whose 4F knee scared off some scouts. He may play third in favor of the surer fielding Fred Hatfield.

Wants Someone Who Looks Like Chimp to Baby Sister

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Recently a television actor named Muggs received a fan letter from a little girl. "I have wanted a baby sister for a long time," she wrote, "and now I would like to have one who looks just like you." Her parents refrained from comment. The actor, J. Fred Muggs, is a baby chimpanzee. Television, which certainly made

Mrs. Jim Green Breaks Arm; Jim Is Housecleaning

Jim Green, county clerk, wants it understood that his wife was not electrocuted Thursday, as rumor would have it. He has had to reassure at least one inquirer that Mrs. Green is still very much alive and in full control of household affairs.

What really happened is that Mrs. Green decided to start her spring housecleaning Thursday. One of her tasks required the use of a stepladder. In her zeal, she slipped from the ladder, tumbled to the floor and fractured her left arm.

She called Mr. Green at his office and he went home to drive her to Dr. J. W. Boger's office. Dr. Boger set the arm, and Mrs. Green returned home.

End of spring housecleaning? Not on your life. "She does the bossing now," says Mr. Green sadly, "and I do the cleaning."

Paul Revere's Church Steeple Cracking Up

By JOHN B. KNOX
BOSTON, April 11 (AP) — Paul Revere's famous church steeple is starting to crack up.

It was 178 years ago this next week that signal lanterns hung in the Old North Church sent Revere and other messengers dashing out of town to warn farmers and villagers that British troops were on the march to destroy military stores at Concord.

The American Revolution was on. Now cracks are appearing in the ancient masonry which supports the slender steeple of Old North (more formally, Christ Episcopal) Church. The cracks are not yet deemed dangerous, but they have spread sufficiently in the 230-year-old walls to be ignored no longer. The nonsectarian Lantern League, dedicated to maintenance of the shrine, currently is seeking $100,000 in gifts to restore and maintain Old North.

Concern about the church is spotlighted right now because April 19 is Patriot's Day in this cradle of liberty and much of the symbolism of Boston's fete is tied up with the twin lanterns which flashed the alarm for the Minute Men of Concord and Lexington.

The tides of time have changed Boston's North End and scattered the families which once comprised Old North's parish. With them have gone the church's normal means of support. Its rector (ex officio) is the Rt. Rev. Norman B. Nash, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts. Services are conducted regularly by the vicar, the Rev. Charles Russell Peck.

The church, oldest public edifice in Boston, is open every day in the year. Donations from worshippers and visitors and sale of maps, cards, books and pictures have helped maintain the property. There were 107,000 visitors last year.

Streets near the church now resound with sidewalk trafficking—often in alien accents—in fruits and vegetables, dried fish, herbs and spices. But when you step from the street inside the 2½-foot-thick walls of Old North, you are back in colonial times.

Inside is quiet and dignity—an arched ceiling, small-pane windows, fluted columns, high galleries and ancient box pews. The pipe organ in the back dates back to 1759. Some historians say it was the first of its kind built in America. A timepiece built in 1726 — “the oldest clock in the country in a public building”—still tells the hours.

In the belfry is a peal of eight sweet-toned bells cast in 1744 in Gloucestershire, England — “the first ring of bells cast for the British Empire in North America.” At the age of 15, Paul Revere joined in forming a guild of bell ringers.

From this steeple, in 1757, tradition records that John Childs, first aviator in American history, made a series of three flights

(presumably by a parachute device). Because his performances led many people from their business, Childs was “forbid flying any more in the town.”

The dead lie in 37 tombs beneath the church. Tradition says that more than a thousand bodies were placed in the old tombs. Some were later removed.

The church has such treasures as the ancient “Vinegar Bible,” the gift of King George I in 1733. A collector once offered $100,000 for it. One of five ancient prayer books shows pieces of paper pasted over the prayers for king and royal family.

Some animals and birds are colored in warm weather, but white during the winter.

This was back in 1880 and for the double observance special fares were granted by railroads to help bring the crowds here to celebrate. These bills, by the thousands, were widely distributed in cities and towns in this area as well as in Sedalia.

Sicher Park Once Hub of Social Whirl for Majority of Sedalians

By W. D. Arce

George H. Trader, president of the Democrat Company, in a casual and reminiscent conversation with a staff member, recalled the happy days of the 1880's when he and others of his age enjoyed frequent trips and play at the old Sicher Park.

The park then was Sedalia's chief amusement center and served for numerous recreational past-times, including horse racing, various sports and athletic events as well as for picnics.

The park was owned by Joseph D. Sicher and Frank E. Sicher, the former, one of Missouri's most widely known hotel men, who later was for many years associated with Charles Conrad, operating the old Sicher Hotel, Third and Ohio, now known as Hotel Royal.

J. D. Sicher had a daughter, Miss Camilla, and son, Harry Sicher. The daughter was a practical hostess, entering into the spirit of hotel life and seeing to it that women guests were accorded every comfort and attention such as they deserved. Harry, who probably knew more traveling men than any other individual in this part of the country, devoted his efforts to seeing their wants, in the way of accommodations, were fully met.

So diligent was he to see that the hotel secured its share, and possibly a little more, of the hotel business, he would meet incoming trains, greet the travelers, secure their light baggage and turn it over to a hotel porter who would load it into a two-wheeled cart. Harry was then off for the hotel where he would put in a ready appearance and be prepared to get a sample room arranged for whatever traveler who might desire to display his offerings to buyers.

Harry seldom ever forgot a face and in most instances could call the name of the person, who had previously been a guest at the Sicher, without hesitation.

But aside from the hotel and back to the park. There a spacious acreage of ground, with an abundance of virgin forest trees, was to be found. Various sections of the park were enclosed in high board fences.

Transportation to the park was by buggies, surries, roadsters, spring wagons and horse drawn cabs as well as other vehicles. The most unusual of all, however, was the little car that plied back and forth from Third and Ohio to the park. It was pulled by two little mules and the driver had a long whip which, when he wanted the mules to jog along a little faster, would be used as a persuader as they pulled the car over the light weight rails from morning until night. Whenever night attractions were given, the park would be operated. It had a limited capacity of 14 to 16 passengers and when it was filled those without their own conveyances would either have to await its return or hike it to the park, a distance of a half mile.

The little mules were cared for with special attention. Feeding time was no bother through the night or in the early morning, when they had a chance to eat corn, an abundance of hay or other feed, but at noonday they were fed by the use of nose-bags. These were a bag-like con-traption with a hoop at the bottom, a short sack, then a hoop at the top with a strap that was placed about the neck of the mule after the bag had been filled with oats.

Buckets of water for drinking were also provided during hours the little car line was in operation. In hot weather, between feeding times, they came into use frequently.

The little park two-mule railway line was discontinued many years ago, giving way to the street railway line which, too, was abandoned some years ago.

The grounds for the park belonged to the Fair Association until 1880 when the tract of 30 acres was purchased by Joseph D. and Frank E. Sicher. The price paid was $10,000. The park was improved and further beautified and a splendid hotel was erected, having a dining room, spacious amusement hall suitable for conventions and public gatherings of various kinds.

The park, with an abundance of shade, had numerous refreshment stands, band pavilion and two large ice houses which were situated on the banks of a good sized lake. Several windmills were conveniently located to supply water from deep wells, and connection was also made with a city water main for an additional supply if needed.

In all seasons of the year public and private parties were held at the park hotel. Balls with full dress and splendor attracted the elite in social circles. The hotel hall, when decorated gaily, was dazzling as women in formals and men in full dress suits and toppers arrived to dance to top-notch orchestras with tuneful and inspiring music as the waltzes, polkas, schottisches and other numbers of well arranged programs were executed with rhythm and perfection. This was long before the advent of jazz and when a big ball was given, socially inclined, beautifully gowned women and their escorts made merry.

Liberty Park, which in later years succeeded Sicher Park, is today Sedalia's beauty spot and, as mentioned in a previous article, cares for outdoor life and recreation to thousands of Sedalians and other park visitors throughout any season of the year, especially during the spring, summer and fall months.

Claudia Will Be Presented April 21-22—

Mary Frances Engle Baffles Cast With Ability to Turn On Tears

The ability of Mary Frances Engle, wife of Jerry Engle, to adapt herself to the emotions of Claudia in the leading feminine role of the play by the same name amazes some of the members of the Community Playhouse group.

Although this is the first big part Mary Frances has ever had in dramatics, she is accustomed to the stage and will not have to cope with stage fright. Mary Frances is a natural in dramatics just as she seems to be in everything else she undertakes. She can turn the tears off and on just like a faucet.

The play is woven around Claudia, in her early twenties, who is married to David, in his early thirties. She has been always so close to her mother that, although physically she is of age, mentally she is still a little girl. Both her mother and her husband realize this and worry about her problem. It is when she learns that her mother has only a short time to live and that she is to have a child that Claudia achieves spiritual stature.

The part of David, taken by Bob Harvey, is also well cast, but even Bob wonders about Mary Frances.

Every rehearsal he has to wipe the tears off his coat lapel. That they are not real tears of sorrow baffle him — but that they are real tears he is certain. He has a proof.

Mary Frances, from the very first rehearsal, seemed to be able to live the part of the character she was playing, Frank Evans, director of the play, dropped by her home to leave the material and tell her she had been chosen for the lead. The next night he went by to take her to the first rehearsal.

Mrs. Jerry Engle

and her living room was entirely different. All the furniture was changed.

"You have changed the furniture," he said.

"Yes, I did that today," she told him. "I arranged it like the furniture is arranged in the play."

Well, it might help out with her home rehearsal of the play, but as far as Jerry (her husband) is concerned, he isn't so happy about it.

She has thoroughly confused him — he just doesn't know where anything is now and he doesn't dare go into the room until he has turned on the light.

The play, Claudia, will be presented by the Community Playhouse on the nights of April 21-22.

at Smith - Cotton High School. The time will be 8 o'clock instead of 8:30 as the plays have been in the past. Mr. Evans stated that this play has only eight characters and it is felt that it will be possible to get ready for the performance by 8 o'clock. Those in the audience who have been asking that the plays start earlier do not realize that most of these people in the cast work until 5 o'clock and some even later and that there is a big job ahead getting the stage set and the members of the cast made up by the time the curtain goes up even at 8:30.

The Community Playhouse will admit free any serviceman or woman in uniform.

Shirley Ringen, Former Sedalian, Bride in Clinton

On the afternoon of Easter Sunday, April 5, Miss Shirley Ringen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ringen of Clinton, former Sedalians, became the bride of Mr. Robert Lee Briggs of Kansas City, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Sam Briggs of Clinton, in an impressive double ring ceremony.

The wedding took place at the altar of the Methodist Church in Clinton before a setting of wood-wardia fern, floor baskets of yellow snapdragons, coral and white gladioli and tall candelabra, holding lighted cathedral tapers. An archway, beneath which the couple stood, was entwined with greenery and yellow carnations. On either side were Easter lilies and in the background baskets with large calla lilies and gladioli.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Linus Eaker of Marshall and Rev. Mark S. Horn of Clinton.

Miss Sarah Margaret Gilbert, at the organ console, played a program of wedding music and accompanied Miss Louise Ringen, sister of the bride, who sang "Through the Years," and Miss Betty Jo Lain, who sang "Golden Day of Promise" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Margaret Duerr and Miss Frances Norfleet, Houstonia, cousins of the bride, in gowns of yellow taffeta and net, lighted the candles. The bride and groom wore bouquets of yellow taffeta and a halo ruffle of matching net. They carried white tapers in clusters of lavender daisies and a shower of lavender, green and white satin ribbon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white wedding tulle, fastened with sheer yoke of nylon illusion edged with an applique of Chantilly lace. The smooth fitting basque type bodice of satin was appliqued with a deep panel of lace down the front. It was fastened down the back with tiny satin buttons. The long, fitted sleeves featured an intricate lace at the top. The full skirt was edged with wide triangles of lace and also appliqued on the skirt at the hemline and the satin swept back into graceful folds of an aisle-wide train. Her fingertip veil was of imported silk illusion held in place by a lace cloche edged with a beaded band of the illusion. She carried a white bouquet on which was a white orchid and a shower of white stephanotis blooms, caught in satin streamers. A single strand of pearls was her only ornament.

Miss Louise Ringen, as maid of honor for her sister, was gowned in pale green taffeta cut with full floor length skirt worn over hoops, with shaped overskirt of nylon net, in similar shade, and pointed peplum. The strapless bodice was finished with a flat bow of the taffeta in front over which was worn a brief cut-a-way net bolero with push-up sleeves. She carried a nosegay bouquet of lavender daisies with mingled ties and her bandeau was of matching taffeta with halo ruffle of net.

Miss Betty Jane Consalus and Miss Carol Durr were bridesmaids. They wore gowns matching that of the maid-of-honor and carried bouquets of white and yellow daisies with contrasting ties.

Sharon Hull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hull, as flower girl, wore a white taffeta and net frock and headpiece and she carried a basket of red rose petals.

Tommy Strader of Columbia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strader, and cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. He wore a white suit with black tie and carried the rings on a heart-shaped pillow.

Mr. Gene Schmidt served Mr. Briggs as best man, and ushers were Mr. Sam Parks, Mr. Malcom Adkins, Mr. Robert Staples and Mr. Robert Montgomery.

Mrs. Ringen wore a waltz-length gown of sheer faille in dusty rose shade with dusty rose and white accessories. Mrs. Briggs, mother of the bridegroom, was in a powder blue waltz-length gown styled with a lace yoke and her accessories were black and white. Their corsages were of white carnations.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Assisting at the punch bowl were Miss Margot Howell and Mrs. Robert McFarland. Mrs. Donald Batschelet and Miss Betty Lou Wade served the wedding cake. The round cake was six tiers and was decorated with yellow roses and fresh daisies. It was encircled with smilax. Crystal candelabra were on either side of the cake. Assisting in serving were Mrs. M. K. Chapman, Mrs. Elvin Durr and Miss Velda Shobe.

The couple left on a wedding trip and will be at home at 1311 West 44th Terrace in Kansas City after April 19.

The bride was born in Sweet Springs, lived in Sedalia a year and then went to Clinton where she finished grade and high school. She entered the Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg in 1930. She is a member of the Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority and the Alpha Phi Delta honorary fraternity, and has been employed at the Farmers Bank in Clinton.

Mr. Briggs after graduating from the Clinton High School in 1948 entered military service and since his discharge has been employed at Remington Arms Company in Kansas City.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. J. B. Ringen, 1501 South Osage, Sedalia, and Mr. Wayland Scott of Sweet Springs, both grandfathers of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. Henry Ringen, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis, all of Sedalia, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Norfleet, Dale and Frances of Houstonia, Mrs. G. H. Tevebaugh and daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth, all of Houstonia, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Minter Ringen and Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Leftwich and family, all of Hushesville and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strader, Harry Jr. and Tommy of Columbia.

Mrs. Robert L. Briggs who, before her marriage Easter Sunday, was Miss Shirley Ringen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ringen of Clinton, formerly of Sedalia.

L. F. Grays Have Open House 50th Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gray of near Houstonia observed their 50th wedding anniversary on March 15 when relatives and friends gathered at the home to help them celebrate. It was a double celebration, for there, too, were Mr. and Mrs. Robert England who were recently married.

Mr. England, who is in service, left March 16 for his base in Colorado. His bride, the former Dorothy Gray, is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gray.

It was back in 1903, March 11, that Miss Ellen Reid and Les Gray were married at the home of her parents in the Houstonia neighborhood. The Rev. Mr. Merle performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray went to the farm where they have resided during the entire 50 years of their marriage. They are the parents of eight children, all living, and five of them were present at the celebration.

The children and families present were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Mullins and children, John, Wesley and Dennis; Mr. and Mrs. Wylie Mullins and children, Mary Ellen, James Allen, Lola Mae and Mrs. Frances Carroll; Mr. and Mrs. John Gray and children, Minnie, Ellen, Billy; and Mr. and Mrs. Bob England; and Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Phillips and children, Wanda, Jimmy and Melvin; Ernest Gray and son, Gaylen.

Did You Ever Try This?

by Mildred Bowman

Paint that upright piano the same color as your walls if you want to minimize the size of it or make it less conspicuous in the room. The same flat paint used for the walls can be used to paint the piano, but it is advisable to use an oil base flat and when thoroughly dry . . . give it a coat of dull varnish so that it will not finger mark and be easier to dust.

For added melody paint a few notes or bars from a favorite tune on the front of the piano. Black notes on a pastel piano would be in harmony and there would be no discord if white notes were to a charcoal piano.

Washington Merry-Go-Round Dulles Turns Deaf Ear to Russian Expert Kennan

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — During the current intense interest in the Russian peace maneuvers, secretary of State Dulles has almost completely ignored the advice of his best Russian expert, ex-ambassador George Kennan.

Kennan has spent a lifetime studying Russia, and his predictions on Soviet developments have been amazingly accurate. He predicted the Chinese Communists would intervene in Korea if General MacArthur sent troops up to the Yalu River, and he predicted the Russians would develop the atomic bomb far more quickly than the experts ever expected.

Finally Kennan predicted that a Russian peace offensive was sure to follow Stalin's death.

Despite this record, the new Secretary of State is giving Kennan the deep-freeze treatment, and Kennan will soon return to his teaching job at Princeton.

Dulles got sore at Kennan when he cautioned against active psychological warfare encouraging satellite peoples to revolt. This was one of Eisenhower's and Dulles' chief campaign themes.

But Kennan disagreed, argued that it was foolish, if not disastrous, to encourage revolution before the United States was ready to help the satellites—in other words, ready for war. If the satellites were crushed, he argued, it would mean they could not rise again for 50 years.

Dulles got especially sore when Kennan made a speech against psychological warfare, released to the press prior to a speech by Dulles for psychological warfare. Because the speech had been sent to the press in advance, Kennan felt he had to go through with it despite Dulles' contrary views. After that it was decided that he was not to be ambassador to Egypt—anyplace else.

"High-Place Probe"

Despite all the pledges to cut out duplication and waste, the Senate is carrying on two duplicate investigations of the government's overseas information program—one by Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, the other by Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa.

Since Hickenlooper was first in the field, he came out with the first report—which disturbed McCarthy no end. When his chief counsel, Roy Cohn, read excerpts from the Hickenlooper report to McCarthy over the phone, McCarthy anxiously asked whether this would take the publicity edge off their own investigation.

"Don't worry, chief," assured Cohn, "Hickenlooper is running a high-class investigation."

Congressmen aren't supposed to travel at the taxpayers' expense

unless they swear it's "official business." So when Congress recessed for Easter, the majority admitted they were going home on vacation and paid their own expenses. However, five congressmen had the gall to claim "official business" in their home districts, and a few others took off on free, round-the-world Easter tours.

Of course, the Air Force doesn't question a congressman's word. Rep. William Bray swore he had "official business" in Terre Haute and Bloomington, Ind., the Air Force dutifully wheeled out a special plane and flew him home for Easter. The cost to the taxpayers was an estimated $1,500, not counting the salaries of the crew and the wear on the plane.

Congressman William Mailard, California Republican, claimed he had to "inspect veterans' hospitals" in the San Francisco area, which happens to be his home town, while Congressman Robert Condon, California Democrat, swore he had to look into the "disposal of surplus property" in Sacramento, which is the nearest surplus property to his Walnut Creek, Calif. home. The Air Force promptly arranged free passage for the two Californians via military Air Transport Service.

Two Louisiana Democrats, representatives Ed Herbert and Overton Brooks, also asked for free transportation to do work in Louisiana for the House Armed Services Committee. However, they were more considerate of the taxpayer's money and turned down a special plane. Instead they waited until they could hitch a ride on an Air Force plane, already going in their direction. Actually this cost the taxpayer no extra money. Herbert finally caught a ride directly to his home in New Orleans, but the closest Brooks could get was Little Rock, Ark. Then he thumbed another ride to Memphis, Tenn., and finally caught an Air Force plane going to his home in Shreveport.

Most legitimate Easter junket was arranged by Congressman Dan Reed, New York Republican, and Harold Cooley, North Carolina Democrat, who caught a ride back to Europe with Gen. Gruenther in order to attend the interparliamentary union conference at Montebello, France.

However, members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee decided to spend the Easter recess touring the world. They split up into two groups, headed by Congressman Walter Judd of Minnesota and Lawrence Smith of Wisconsin, and took off for both Europe and the Far East to study "the military aspects of the Mutual Security Program."

Judd was accompanied by Republican Chester Merrow of New Hampshire, and Democrats A. S. J. Carnahan of Missouri and Clement

Zablocki of Wisconsin. Smith's group included Winston Prouty of Vermont, Albert Morano of Connecticut, and Margaret Church of Illinois, all Republicans, with Democrat Burr Harrison of Virginia.

Washington Pipeline

The Air Force will soon be building jet planes faster than the oil industry can produce the fuel to operate them. The military demand for jet fuel next year is expected to be double present needs. Yet the oil companies still haven't started expanding their facilities or revising production schedules—which must be done to avoid a jet fuel shortage in 1954—The nation's whiskey dealers are threatening to boycott any brand that won't give them an increased mark-up. This may mean higher prices... in spite of the amazing progress on nuclear reactors, government planners don't expect atomic energy to replace coal as the principal source of power in this country for another 20 years

...the mortgage debt on private homes hit an all-time peak this year—over $38,000,000,000. Yet planning to boost interest rates... Senator Caperton of Indiana is clamoring for more traffic cops to patrol the highways. Only one motorist is getting ticketed for every 118 miles of patrolled highway, and police chiefs want to cut this down to one arrest or warning for every 40 miles... Secretary of Agriculture Benson proposes using more surplus food for the school lunch program. It's noon hour... The Army has developed a new, scientific shoe-sizing system which should give the G. I.'s more comfortable shoes and curtail blisters. The new shoes will come in eight sizes, measured to fit almost any feet... Secretary of Commerce Weeks has just about decided to scrap the government merchant shipbuilding program to keep his budget down.

Odds and Ends

One day recently a Sedalia business man was given a couple of cantaloupes that had been grown in Texas. They were a bit hard and green yet, so the man took them someplace where he thought he would leave them a few days to ripen.

That was all right, but the man made the mistake of not telling his wife about it. The wife came along, saw the cantaloupes and wondered how they got there, then she decided that in some manner they must have been left over from last summer—so she just got rid of them right now. She tossed them in the garbage can. And that was the end of the two little cantaloupes from Texas. When the man looked around for them, they just weren't there. Of course the woman didn't know how she had missed those cantaloupes for such a long time and hadn't thrown them away before, but this time of year, when the girls are on the house cleaning spree, they are likely to find almost anything, almost anywhere and they don't bother to wonder too much how it came to be there, or how long.—H. Today's Poem...

A FROWN OR A SMILE
By Hazel Lang

Do your lips turn up or your lips turn down
As you go along the streets of your town?
Do folks like to see you as you come along,
Or do you just seem to rub everyone wrong?
Do you tell all your aches and your pains and your ills?
Do you talk about doctors and shots and pills?
Do you tell all the terrible gossip you've heard
And added a bit to every sharp word?
Do you criticize folks, your neighbors next door,
The folks in your office, the girls in the store?
Do you grumble and fuss and fret and stew
As you tell of the work you have to do?
Do you say little things that will cut to the quick
That make folks mad and sometimes even sick?
If your lips always droop as you go around
You're missing the best in life I have found.
For other folk's lips that are always down
Never curve up when they see a frown.
But a smile, what a lot of good it can do,
And doubly so if your eyes twinkle, too.
If things always seem to be going all right
People are happy when you come in sight.
They like to hear laughter, they like a voice light
For a happy-go-lucky makes everything bright.
It's a mighty good system to cultivate
To cast out trouble and cast out hate,
Because you are helping yourself there, too,
The sunshine you give comes right back to you.

Drug Will Stop Speedy and Fatal 'Black' Cancer

By Alton L. Blakeslee
AP Science Reporter

CHICAGO (AP)—Discovery of the first drug stopping the speedy and almost-always fatal black cancer, melanoma, was announced today. It works only for a time. But it has banished this dread cancer in one human for at least a year, and has helped a few others.

Until now there has not been any drug or treatment, except surgery at the very earliest signs, which has had the slightest effect upon melanoma. This dark cancerous growth always starts somewhere on the skin, then spreads with distressing rapidity inside the body.

This heartening step in chemical warfare upon cancer was reported to the American Association for Cancer Research by Doctors Farber, Virginia Downing, and Majib Abu-Haydar of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation and Department of Pathology, Harvard Medical School, Boston.

TEPA has been used so far upon 17 humans with melanomas. Dr. Farber said. It temporarily knocked out the cancers in five. The other 12 were persons in whom the cancers already had spread to internal organs.

Work on mice indicates that TEPA might entirely abolish human melanomas if they were caught very early, said Dr. Farber. Melanomas account for about three percent of all cancer deaths.

100-Yr. Weather Forecast: Whew, It's Cold; Brr, It's Hot

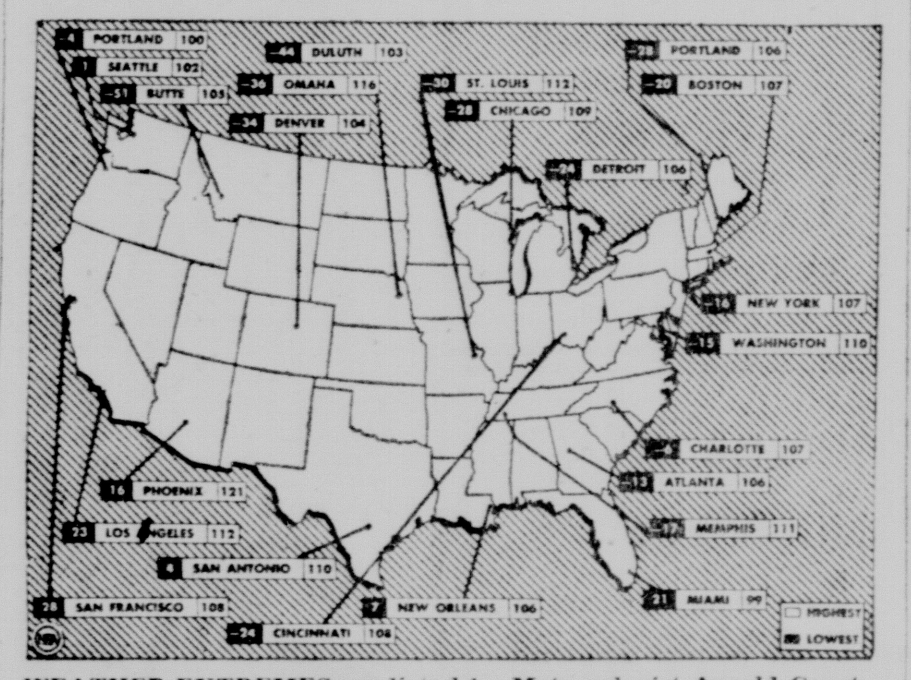

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—Weather forecast for next 100 years: whew and brr. The man who makes this daring prediction is Arnold Court, graduate meteorologist at the University of California. Using a mathematical formula, he has predicted the probable highest and lowest temperatures for 100 spots in the U.S. in the next century.

Sometime between now and 2053, the mercury in Death Valley, Calif., will bubble up to a tepid 130 degrees. And the coldest we'll see, if Court's computations are correct, is a brisk 64 below, which is expectable in northern Montana. The Montanians can hardly wait.

Court sets forth his conclusions in an article in the American Geographical Society's Geographical Review. It has all the fascination of a horror story.

Pick your location and hear the worst. New England? A high of 107 (in Massachusetts) and a low of 38 below (in Vermont) will be recorded in the coming 100 years. The South? Up to 114 (in Arkansas) and down to 22 below (in Tennessee) make this coming century charming.

There is no escape. The plains states are probably the worst off with Court anticipating a high of 116 along a belt extending from Montana through the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and on to the Oklahoma-Texas border, with a chilly 60 below in Montana and North Dakota.

In the battle between Southern California and Southern Florida, there's not much to choose. Los Angeles will get warmer (112 to Miami's 99), but Miami will be a touch colder (21 to LA's 23). As a matter of fact—or prediction—Northern California looks like a better bet than Southern California. San Francisco's expectable extremes are 108 and 28.

Court bases his figures on a complicated bit of business called the statistical theory of extremes, which is the work of a mathematician named E. J. Gumbel. This includes such phrases as "the extreme of a sample from a distribution of the exponential type," so let's not get involved with it.

Boiled down, it sets forth TEPA was developed by scientists of the Calco Chemical Division, American Cyanamid Company, and first was tried against leukemia, the cancer of the blood. It has little effect against acute leukemia, but by happy accident it was tried upon melanoma.

Some animals are believed to manufacture water for their bodies from the hydrogen and oxygen in the food they eat.

It Sounds a Lot Easier Than It Looks

Forrest Hatfield, in Wheel Chair, Longs to Do Housework

Forrest M. Hatfield, 206 East Fifth, gets a little lonesome at times sitting in his wheel chair. He would like to be making things of wood, but right now he just can't. Maybe one of these days he will be using his hammer and saw to create things of beauty again. He just can't find a hobby that he could do that will quite take the place of the work that is so much a part of his life.

From the time he was just a little boy he has liked to make things of wood and he came by it naturally. His grandfather was a carpenter. "He had five sons and only one of them took up carpentry," Mr. Hatfield said with a touch of disgust. But then the grandson did take it up and worked at it for many years.

Mr. Hatfield was born seven miles south of Syracuse on June 20, 1881, and when he was nine years old the family moved to Versailles. That is where he learned from his grandfather how to build things and how to make things out of wood. He was always tagging along with granddad, watching, asking questions and then trying to make something himself.

He wasn't so sure, though, when he grew up that he wanted to follow the trade. He came to Sedalia and attended Central Business College and after receiving his business education he went to St. Louis where he worked in the office of the Heine Safety Steel Boiler Manufacturing Co. He went back to Versailles and, in 1909, took a civil service examination for rural mail carrier, and he was a rural mail carrier for ten years.

During the time he was carrying mail he had an unforgettable experience. It was April 2, 1912, and the route led over a creek. Usually it was all right, but this time the frost and snow were just going off and the gravel was soft. The horses and buggy began going down in the quicksand, and Mr. Hatfield managed to get out and go for help and a farmer pulled the buggy and other horse out with his team.

From this, however, Mr. Hatfield took such a cold that it settled in his eyes and he was unable to continue with his work, so he gave up the job.

For three years he did clerical work for the W. Dickey Brick Manufacturing Co., and quit there to come to Sedalia on Feb. 27, 1923. He went to work as a cabinet maker at the Missouri Pacific Shops, where he worked until he suffered a stroke on Feb. 14, 1922. He took his retirement in November of that year.

Mr. Hatfield's father was a farmer and his mother was a teacher, following that profession until her marriage. His aunt, the late Mrs. Myrtle Hagard, was also a teacher and taught in Sedalia.

He is not able to attend church now but for many years he has been a member of the First Methodist Church and the Methodist Men's Class.

Although he has never taken an active part in politics, he was reared a Republican and sometimes gets pretty wrought up on the subject. His wife, however, has worked in politics for years and feels she has a right to her own views, but tries not to ever talk politics to people she knows don't agree with her.

The Hatfields have two sons, both of whom served in World War II. Harry is home with them, and like his father, is working at the Missouri Pacific Shops where he is a welder. Somehow, you get the feeling that his father would rather have him a cabinet maker, but everybody can't do the same kind of work well, and Harry likes welding.

The other son, Edwin, who was in the Army Air Force Command, is now a mechanic with TWA and is in Rome. He has been in Iceland, Portugal and Bermuda. He is married and has four children, twins, Katy and Mark, four years old, who were born in Portugal, Betsy, 11, and Bobby, 8.

Right now the days drag, even though he does keep up with the world through reading and television, but soon the days will be warm enough for him to wheel himself out on the porch into the sunshine where he can see the trees—the trees from which come the wood he so loves.

BOOKS FOR THE BARON

by Anthony Morton

Copyright 1952 by John Creasey - Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: John Mantering knows only a few as The Baron who aids forces of law and order is at the home of the late Lord Philip Lithorn when Gloria Lithorn, a daughter, thinks she sees the body of a man in the library. Mantering investigates. Ends what may be blood spots and sees a man spring on him as Mantering searches for the man he is struck on the head.

III

THE acuteness of danger and the instinct of self-preservation exploded in Mantering's mind; and the blow seemed to burst his head. Falling he was aware of a shadow behind him—of a man with his arm upraised weapon in hand—a weapon that could deal death. He fell on his side; the second blow grazed his head. He caught a glimpse of a small man in black with a handkerchief over the lower half of his face. Bright eyes glittered in a silent threat of murder.

Mantering kicked out, made the man back away, and won a moment's respite. He turned on his back, and lashed out again, but his assailant dodged, then struck. The weapon looked like a heavy ebony ruler, a dark, round, glistening blow on the forehead. While the other had the weapon, Mantering was in acute danger. It fell again, and he shot out a hand, felt the jar against his knuckles, but clutched it and twisted. It fell duly on to the floor.

The man dived for it, with a gloved hand.

Mantering, now on his feet and crouching, struck at him wildly, then kicked the weapon farther away.

The masked man stood for a fraction of time, glaring, then turned and crossed swiftly to the door. One moment he was there, a dark menace; the next the door had closed on him. Mantering got to his feet to give chase; but his head reeled. He put out a hand and clutched the end of the bed.

He sat in his sunlit office, overlooking the Embankment, just after midday on that June morning. His desk was so placed that he could see the Thames, the great building across the river, a part of Westminster Bridge with its three-lamp standards, and part of the Embankment.

The telephone bell rang. Bristow lifted the receiver. "Superintendent William Bristow of New Scotland Yard, was a neatly dressed, rather dapper man—if 'dapper' can be applied to a man of rather more than medium height and breadth of shoulder. He chain-smoked, grumbled continually about the frustrating and ever-increasing mass of by-laws, regulations and new statutory orders.

Where Does Tito Go Now?

It Seems Certain His Ambitions Begin in Balkans

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Staff Correspondent

BELGRADE—Where does Tito go from here?

The little dictator, manicured and neat as a Radio City usher in his powder blue uniform, speaks to a wild crowd.

They puncture his remarks with frantic chants: "Hero Tito! Hero Tito! Who is Tito? We are Tito. And Tito is ours."

He speaks without manuscript. The only thing on the varnished rostrum is his beautiful pair of leather gloves.

He looks over the crowd of peasants in fur caps, glass-eyed school children, husky soldiers in badly-cut uniforms.

His speech deals with his new friends: American aid, Britain's royal palaces.

Tito is not without ambition. His every strut screams it.

It seems certain his ambitions begin in the Balkans. And that is O. K. with the West. He would simply love to head a bloc of Communist Balkan States that refuse to take orders from Communist Mother Russia.

He would not take orders from Washington—but he would take many more dollars.

Can Tito, having proved a Communist state can live without Moscow, influence his Balkan neighbors to break away?

He is trying in many ways. The most direct method is Radio Yugoslavia, which beams volumes of anti-Malenkov communism to Albania, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Poland.

The satellites try furiously to jam Radio Yugoslavia. They come in on the same wave length with highly pitched recordings of barks, whistles, and rumbles. However, local broadcasts go off the air at 10 p. m. to give Radio Yugoslavia enough voice power often to break through.

Since Tito's London visit, Radio Yugoslavia has been using more Voice of America material. Tito's announcers tell Iron Curtain neighbors:

"We are taking American aid for the common defense against imperialism, but they are not interfering with us like the Russians did."

"Russian communism is not real Marxism. It is government by terror. We tried terror, influenced by Russia, and it doesn't work. As Lenin wrote, having accomplished our revolution we are reducing the power of the state."

"Wake up, friends! Russia is exploiting our country—just like it exploited our country—until we broke away."

Radio Yugoslavia discusses individual satellite problems. The pitch to Bulgaria, regarded as a particularly unhappy captive, recalls the mysterious death of former Dictator Georgi Dimitroff.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

R. L. Cuff, livestock commissioner of the Kansas City Livestock Exchange, was the speaker before a gathering of 44 "dirt farmers" in the banquet room of the Hotel Bothwell. He extolled the benefits of tubercular tests for cattle. A discussion was held during the meeting as to a proposal to make the tests available free.

—1928—

The Rev. Daniel Healy, 75, oldest Catholic priest both in point of age and service in Kansas City, died there in St. Joseph's Hospital, where he had been chaplain seven years. He was formerly pastor in St. Patrick's parish in Sedalia.

—1928—

Claude "Red" King, who had been in New York working with the Orpheum circuit of vaudeville, was home for a visit with relatives.

—1928—

C. F. Scotten, Pettis County superintendent of schools, was chosen to be in charge of the district spelling contest at the Central Missouri State Teachers College, Warrensburg.

FORTY YEARS AGO

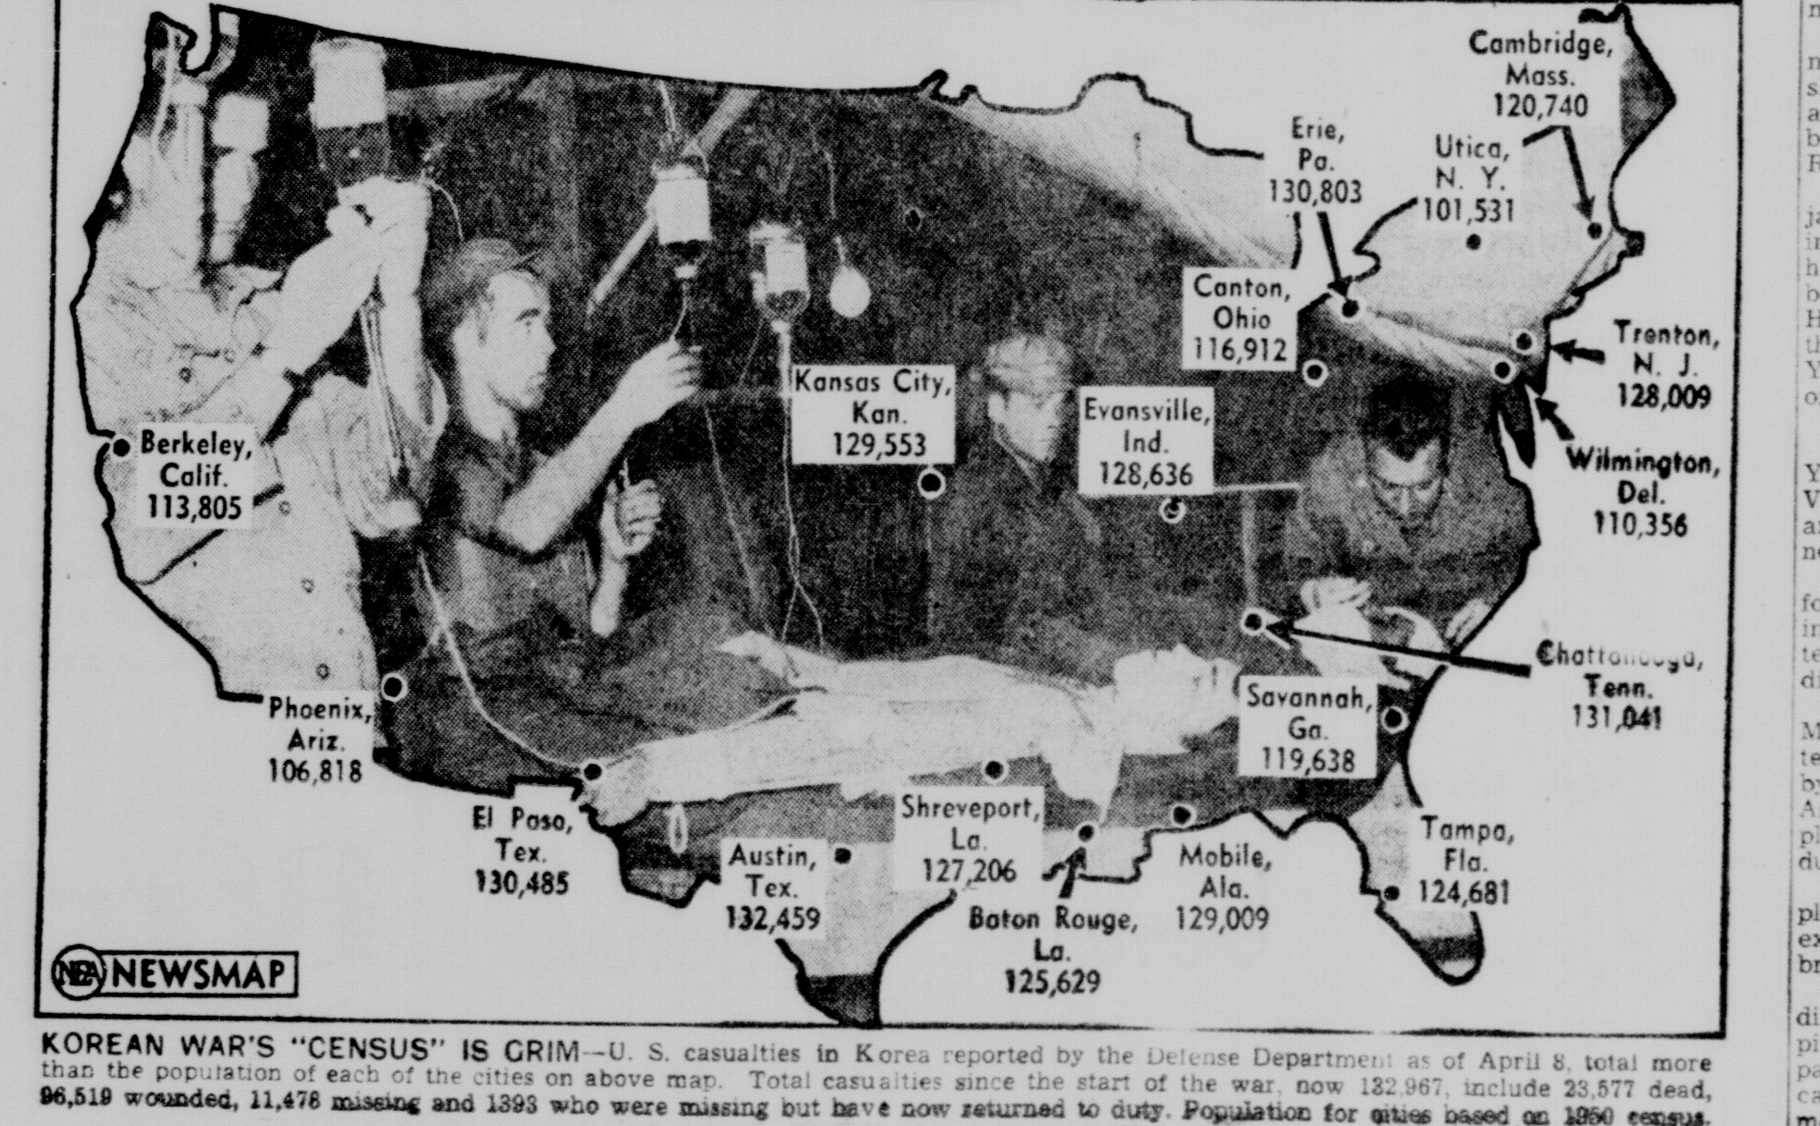

J. J. Hawley, clerk and stenographer in the office of Trainmaster C. M. Hunt of the Missouri Pacific, left for St. Louis to take a position in the company's general offices. He was succeeded here by Thomas Harnsberger.

—1913—

Dennis Kahrs, former manager in the Postal Telegraph Company's offices here, and Mrs. Kahrs, who for some time had been in Mississippi and Louisiana, returned and expected to reside here permanently.

—1913—

The Rev. M. W. Smith, pastor of the Red Sedalia Baptist Church was chosen to act as one of the judges in a debate between Kemper Military School debaters and members of the debate team of the local high school.

KOREAN WAR'S "CENSUS" IS GRIM—U. S. casualties in Korea reported by the Defense Department as of April 8, total more than the population of each of the cities on above map. Total casualties since the start of the war, now 132,967, include 28,577 dead, 96,519 wounded, 11,476 missing and 13,993 who were missing but have now returned to duty. St. Paul's College Chorus to Sing At Stover Church

St. Paul's College Chorus, under the direction of Norman Gienapp, will present a concert of sacred choral music at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Stover on Friday evening April 17, at 8:15 o'clock. The Rev. J. C. Schedler is pastor of St. Paul's Church.

A free will offering will be taken for the benefit of St. Paul's College music department. The public is invited to attend.

Mr. Norman Gienapp, conductor of the chorus, is a member of the faculty and head of the department of Greek. He is a graduate of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, and of the University of Minnesota, receiving the degree of master of arts from the latter institution.

The 28 singers comprising the chorus are pre-ministerial students of St. Paul's College, Concordia, where the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod operates a preparatory school whose graduates continue their theological studies at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis. The appearance in Stover is one of a series of concerts that will take the group over Missouri and in Illinois.

Singing Collegians of Elmhurst College To Present Program Wednesday Night

The "Singing Collegians" of Elmhurst College, a thirty man choral group under the direction of David Austin, well-known Chicago bass-baritone, will present a program of sacred and secular music at Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church, Fourth and Vermont, on Wednesday, April 15, 8 p. m. The concert, part of the club's annual tour, is being sponsored by the Women's Guild, the Churchmen's Brotherhood, the Varied Interest Club and the Sunday School of Immanuel congregation.

The Glee Club has won the high esteem of critics and audiences on previous tours. It has presented concerts at such famous places as Carnegie Hall in New York and Orchestra Hall in Chicago. Radio and television appearances have been included among the activities of the club. This spring the club is singing through Illinois and Missouri, from April 10 through April 19.

Sacred music interpreted by the "Singing Collegians" includes Handel's "Hallelujah, Amen" from Judas Maccabaeus, and "O Bone Jesu" by Palestrina. Works by
